Serious News From Rome
A Great U. S. Flier
Not One Mayor Drunk
Americans in Russia

By Arthur Brisbane

NEWS OF anti-Catholic agitation in Rome becomes more serious, especially in the light of events in Madrid and other parts of Spain. The recent attack by Fascists on a mail van carrying letters for Pope Pius was followed yesterday by other demonstrations against students of Catholic institutions in Rome.

Rioters surrounded the Catholic students' headquarters, stoning the building, breaking all windows up to the fifth floor. The police had been summoned, but the Fascist students overwhelmed them.

Windows were broken in other Catholic headquarters and the situation is strained between the Italian government and the Vatican.

Pope Pius, since early in March, has refused to receive Count De Vecchi, appointed by Mussolini, Italian ambassador to the Holy See.

Additional anxiety is caused in Catholic circles by the action of Spain's Republican government ordering the public registry to make an inventory of "all property, buildings of Catholic religious orders in Spain."

It is feared in Catholic circles that this may be a prelude to confiscation, the enactment of a measure to declare all property of religious houses state property.

Thirty-five thousand Spanish women have signed a protest against the recent burning of churches and convents in Spain, and a petition asking for compulsory teaching of Catholicism in all Spanish schools.

The Spanish government has made no official reply as yet to the protest of Pope Pius against the destruction of Spanish Catholic churches and other property.

Captain Hawks, champion American flier, had his breakfast in London, luncheon in Berlin, and dinner in Paris.

The crowd welcoming him at Le Bourget, the Paris flying field, at ten minutes past six last night, called him "America's Meteor Man." He flew from London to Berlin in 3 hours and 15 minutes, spent an hour and 27 minutes in Berlin, plenty of time for luncheon, and flew from Berlin to Paris for his dinner in 3 hours and 5 minutes.

We are proud of our fliers in Europe, proud also of the great self-control of our travelling mayors. Mayor Walter E. Batterson of Hartford, Ct., after luncheon with French officials at the Hotel De Ville, in Paris, said:

"We are 21 mayors who have been continuously banqueting now for nearly a whole week, and not one of us has been drunk. Name another 21 men going through the same experience who could say as much for themselves."

That is doing pretty well for 21 American mayors. But the statement will amuse Frenchmen, who never drink ice water and never get drunk.

Senator Borah laughs at "dull minds" that object to doing business with Russia, and advises us to go after the Russian trade, that European nations are all seeking.

Mr. Borah points out that the success of the Russian five-year plan is largely AN AMERICAN SUCCESS. "Over three thousand of our able engineers and industrial managers are over there. Over $200,000,000 credit is being extended by General Motors, General Electric, Ford and many wealthy corporations are there."

Senator Borah thinks we could "safely absorb" some of that Russian trade, created to a large extent by American machines and American brains.

Against depression, and the timidity that makes it worse, the gods of earth fight in vain for the present.

Piccard and Kipfer Land Their Balloon on a Glacier in Heart of the Alps

Innsbruck, Austria, May 28 (INS)—Prof. Auguste Piccard and Charles Kipfer, Swiss scientists, are alive and well despite their hazardous accomplishment of reaching the stratosphere, 10 miles above the earth's surface, in a hermetically sealed aluminum ball slung beneath a giant gas balloon.

The balloon landed on a glacier near the Alpine town of Gurgi on the Italian frontier last night and when dawn came Piccard and Kipfer set out on foot for the nearest settlement.

Prof. Piccard told rescuers, who met him as he was trekking from the scene of the descent, that he had succeeded in reaching the stratosphere, ascending to an altitude of 16,000 meters, approximately 52,500 feet, 300 feet less than 10 miles.

MAGNIFICENT, HE SAYS

"I have beaten the world's altitude record by 4000 meters. I am happy to say that we reached the stratosphere," Prof. Picnard declared upon his arrival at the village of Ober Gurgl with his rescuers.

"The flight was magnificent beyond conception. We always had the balloon under control, and we obtained plenty of material which is of the highest scientific value," he continued.

"We're both very tired," he said, "but otherwise we're well and happy. Our balloon is safe and the damage to the instruments is hardly worth mentioning.

"Yesterday was excellent for observations. But the buoyancy of the balloon was so great that we could land only after the sun had gone down.

SPENT NIGHT IN BALL

"I did not choose any particular landing place, but we saw a glacier and thought it would be as good as any other spot.

"We landed smoothly but rose late to look for human habitations so we spent the night in the gondola."

Near Panic at Explosion on Trolley

Near panic followed an explosion and fire in a Boston Elevated one-man trolley car in Ferry st. near Cross st., Malden, this afternoon.

Motorman E. S. Hemenway of 22 Ceda rst., Charlestown, succeeded in partially restoring order and preventing injury. He prevailed upon the passengers to wait in the burning car until he made certain a short circuit had not electrified the rails outside. All escaped injury.

The explosion was of an undetermined nature in the motor box under the car, which was bound from Everett terminal to Malden square.

The blast was audible for several blocks. Fire followed immediately and by the time the car was vacated the entire undercarriage was aflame.

Hemenway opened the four doors on both sides of the car, and the passengers alighted in orderly fashion, after he had warned them against the danger of crowding.

BROILING HOT; MORE TO COME

The mercury rose to 90 at the weather bureau this afternoon as the sun broiled Boston from a cloudless sky.

On the street it was much hotter.

It was not only the hottest day of 1931, five degrees warmer than May 20, the previous hottest day, but was the second hottest May 28 on record at the local bureau.

While worning people began to plan beach trips for this evening to cool off, mothers at home with small children were already hitting the trail to the seashore.

For tomorrow the weather man promises no letup in the heat wave, but give him credit—he's trying to do his best to provide sunny skies for the holiday week-end.

The May 28 Boston weather bureau record is 91, which the mercury touched on this date two years ago.

PRISONER TO BE TAKEN TO COURT

Defense Request to Examine Slain Girl's Clothing May Cause Delay in Trial

By JAMES J. SMITH

Newport, R. I., May 28—Exactly a week before his scheduled trial here for the murder of Verna E. Russell, Elliott R. Hathaway, of Fall River, will be brought to Newport court next Monday.

Two motions filed yesterday in his behalf will be argued here, it was decided today.

Judge Charles A. Walsh, already assigned to the trial, was assigned to hear the motions by Presiding Justice Edward W. Blodgett at Providence.

One motion, requesting postponement of trial until October, Judge Walsh already has intimated he will deny. Another, one of earlier defense motions he warned Hathaway there would be no postponement of trial because of an eleventh hour change of counsel.

TRIAL MAY BE DELAYED.

Greatest interest is centered in the other motion, which asks a court order submitting for examination of the defense, the clothing worn by the student nurse on the night she was slain and the medical reports of pathologists who viewed her body.

If the latter motion should be granted there is a possibility of trial postponement due to the destruction of Miss Russell's bloomers at the first autopsy as related in an exclusive story in the Boston Evening American yesterday.

The motion to examine the clothing was made soon after a local undertaker had confirmed the story that the bloomers had vanished.

McLYMAN TO ARGUE

Atty.-Gen. Benjamin M. McLyman will argue against the motions. Yesterday he said he had not been advised the bloomers were missing and that if they were it was not important. Today he said:

"I prefer not to discuss that matter until the trial opens. We are informed completely about the clothing. We are satisfied with the situation." Of the medical report, he said:

"That report is now evidence and I am not going to give it to defense counsel. Dr. Louis Haldaway, brother of the defendant, has read it. We will not turn it over to the defense at this time."

ACCIDENTALLY DESTROYED.

Why McLyman had not been notified that the bloomers were destroyed is a puzzling feature of the case.

His view that their destruction was unimportant is not the view of Attys. George Hinckley and Clarence Hodson and John H. Nolan of this city, who late yesterday filed the defense motions.

Dr. Elmus Peasley, Truesdale Hospital pathologist, who performed the actual work of the autopsy, stated that the bloomers had been turned over to the State police, along with the rest of the girl's clothing.

It was Dr. Peasley who admitted to Dist.-Atty. Crowley and Dr. George Burgess Magrath of Boston that they had been accidentally destroyed by the undertaker's 15-year-old assistant with waste material while he was cleaning up the place after the autopsy.

FINDS GAS LEAK; TO LOSE LIFE

Brockton, May 28 (INS)—Mrs. Ursula Karnila, 42, proprietor of a small grocery store, went down cellar to search for a gas leak with a lighted match today, with probably fatal results.

The explosion which announced the discovery of the leak blew off one side of the house and Mrs. Karnila was enveloped in a sheet of flame.

Doctors said she would not live.

Andover Shooting Case Is Put on File

Lawrence, May 28 (AP)—Cases against two Phillips Andover students, found guilty of delinquency in connection with the accidental shooting of one of the boys, were placed on file today when they appeared in juvenile court for sentence.

The boys are Walter A. Stuhr, 16, of Chicago, who was wounded in the hip by a .22-caliber rifle bullet which ricochetted from a stone, and Walter Edmundson, 13, of Pittsburgh.

6 Workmen Escape Injury as Wall Falls

Six men engaged in the construction of a stone wall at a filling station at Huntington ave. and Stuart st., Back Bay, had a narrow escape from injury when the wall on which they were working collapsed.

Pedestrians first believed that some of the men had been injured and sent calls for aid.

A form used in the construction had been removed before the cement had set, causing the wall to fall, it was said.

STOLEN BABY FOUND.

The infant had been missing 19½ hours when located in the Bartlett home by Deputy Sheriff Charles W. Jerome. A city-wide search was in full swing and outside of Portland state troopers were visiting gypsy camps in belief that the infant might be concealed in one of them.

Conversation of children in the street about "Mrs. Bartlett's new baby" led the sheriff to the home, where he found Mrs. Bartlett and the baby in the same bed.

She at first protested that Gloria was her own, but when Jerome found the carriage in which the baby had disappeared from in front of a Congress st. store, she confessed.

Police said she told them that her husband had threatened to leave her unless she had a baby, and she kidnaped Gloria because she was so young she thought she could fool her husband.

POSED AS MOTHER

The husband, Edward Bartlett, a private in the 5th Infantry, was summoned for questioning. He told authorities that his wife said the baby was born to her at the exact hour that she kidnaped it.

He denied ever threatening to leave his wife because she had been unable to bear him children. He always hoped to become a father, though, he said.

Mrs. Bartlett will be arraigned on the kidnaping charge tomorrow.

FLIERS BREAK AIR RECORD

Jacksonville, Fla., May 28 (AP)—Walter Lees and Frederic Bressy, British aviators, flying a Diesel motored monoplane, set a world's non-refueling flight record of 76 hours, 23 minutes, at 12:10 p. m. E. D. T., today.

After breaking the record they continued their flight, which began at 7:47 a. m., E. D. T., last Monday.

The old mark of 75 hours and 23 minutes was set recently in Northern Africa by two Frenchmen.

A reporter today stepped into a drug store in Columbus ave., half a block from police headquarters, and found a policeman from the East Dedham st. station behind the counter, clad in a druggist's white coat.

As investigation followed which brought headquarters officials their first intimation that the East Dedham police had raided the store and seized a quantity of alleged liquor.

an inborn talent, as is music. One of the best spellers in the world was Leo Ashley Grace, formerly of Plainfield, N. J. He could spell "phthisic" when barely three years of age, and never made a mistake.

As British industry drops, crime rises. Home office criminal statistics show a three per cent increase in "criminality." The total is comparatively small. One United States city supplies more crime in a year than all the British Islands.

Depression and idleness have bad effects everywhere.

Prudhomme said long ago, and wisely, "Monarchies are destroyed by poverty, republics by wealth."

But the great menace to the new Spanish republic is not wealth, but poverty.

Gold is being exported from Spain, the value of the Spanish currency is falling, and a country, republic or monarchy, with money that lacks buying power, has trouble ahead.

In Chicago employers propose that workers in building trades accept a reduction in wages to promote building. They think a "temporary" reduction in wages, accompanying lower prices of building materials, would help to overcome unemployment.

Everybody knows that reducing wages, generally speaking, tends to prolong the depression. Resumption of business depends on buying power. Lower wages mean less money to spend.

On the other hand lower wages might be better than no wages. And incidentally many union men, by private individual agreement, are working far below the former union rate.

It is a difficult question. Many unions might be willing to make temporary concessions in the general interest, but they feel that if wages were reduced now, long fight might be necessary to bring them back.

2 RESCUED AT ROXBURY FIRE

Two small children were carried to safety early today by police from the Dudley st. station when fire of undetermined origin started in the basement of a dwelling house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burtman at 80 Walnut pk., Roxbury.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Burtman, who smelled smoke and aroused members of his family. Two patrolmen ran into the house and carried the youngsters in their night clothing, to the street

TUG BLAMED IN DEATH CRASH

Lack of fog whistles or danger signals from the tug Trimount were blamed today by Capt. William B. Corning of the steamer New York for the fatal crash in which his vessel sank the tug with the loss of three lives.

Relating his actions before the crash in Long Island sound May 7, Capt. Corning told steamboat inspectors at the hearings stored today his ship was reversed 10 seconds after masthead lights of the Trimount were sighted.

The New York, with 200 passengers aboard, was plying 12 knots through dense fog, five knots slower than normal, when the Trimount was sighted, he said.

"At no time did we hear fog whistles or danger signals, and I was on the bridge all night," he testified.

BRIDE, 23, IN DEATH VIGIL

PENN TIGHTENS GRIP ON N. E. RAIL LINES

Continues to Strengthen Its Position as Officials Talk, Crooker Warns

Providence, R. I., May 28—While New England business interests are discussing the best forms of disposition or consolidation of their railroads, the problem is being quietly solved by one of the trunk lines, according to George L. Crooker, chairman of the Rhode Island committee.

In a statement issued today, Crooker points out that the Pennsylvania road is quietly buying control of the New Haven and the Boston & Maine, which handle 75 per cent of the New England tonnage.

NO COMPETING LINES

The members, Crooker says, acknowledge the Pennsylvania has a right to buy controlling interest in a line not competing with it and further conclude there is practically no competition between the New Haven and Boston & Maine roads.

However, Crooker states, it is apparent there is some confusion in the minds of the Pennsylvania officials regarding their right to purchase controlling interest in the Boston & Maine. They have made no direct purchase of any of that stock, the purchase being made by the Pennroad Corp.

HASTY ACTION NEEDED

Crooker says that if New England does not want Pennsylvania control there are but two avenues of escape and both soon will be closed.

These, he says, are to prove competition between the New Haven and Boston & Maine or the consolidation of the Boston & Maine with another trunk line, a competitor of the Pennsylvania.

Crooker warns that New England must act at once, as the Pennsylvania is consolidating its position, while New England people are discussing theoretical solutions of their rail problems.

FINAL PLEA IN SANBORN CASE

Mrs. Madeline Florence Walcott Sanborn was "ostracized" from the affections of her millionaire father by her older sister, her counsel charged today in the final argument on her hearing in protest of the will of John Wallace Walcott, Natick shoe manufacturer.

The older sister he named as Mrs. Grace Walcott Forbush of Natick, who was left $325,000 and a residue while the younger sister was left $125,000 in trust.

"It was a poisoning of the old man's mind that was instrumental in driving his younger daughter from the house," Atty. Robert W. Bushnell charged in his argument.

"While she was far away from her parent and could not hear the conversation between her father and her sister, she was slowly being ostracized from his affections."

The case was expected to reach the jury late today or tomorrow after final arguments of counsel for the will.

FIREMEN FIGHT HICCOUGHS

Firemen Harrison Gardiner, Henry Farrell and Adrian Dow were detailed for work with an inhalator, administering oxygen as hiccoughs which began at 2 a. m. yesterday continued to wrack the weak heart of the doctor.

He gained a rest of nearly two hours at 8 a. m. this morning, but at that hour the attack resumed. He has been ill two weeks.

Late today it was necessary to procure more oxygen tanks from Boston, those of Hull and surrounding towns having been used in the fight.

A heart affliction, which caused two similar attacks in the last two years, is responsible. Fourteen months ago Hull firemen, using oxygen, saved Dr. Sturgis' life during a five-day attack of hiccoughs.

As physician and surgeon, Dr. Sturgis has long been prominent in the South Shore. He is a World War veteran commander of a veterans' post, chairman of the Hull Republican committee and a member of many of the town boards.

He was married last January to Miss F. Mildred Foley, Hingham kindergarten teacher, 38 years his junior.

Man Who Walks Into Raid Is Fined $200

Jacob Waldman, 35, Stockton st., Chelsea, who last week walked into a raid and dropped a five-gallon can of liquor, according to the police, was today arraigned before Judge Ralph W. Greve in Lynn court and found guilty of illegally keeping liquor.

Waldman was also found guilty of operating an automobile after the revocation of the license. On each charge he was fined $100. He appealed.

Counsel for Duringer Says He Will Tell on Stand How Shooting Occurred

New York, May 28 (INS)—Red-handed, deliberate murder? Or an accidental shooting of the woman he loved?

The jury, just completed today, which will try Rudolph "Fat" Duringer, pals of Francis "Two-Gun" Crowley, for the murder of Virginia Brannen of Bangor, Me., dancer, had these conflicting versions laid before them today in Bronx County court as Duringer's trial for his life got under way.

District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin, relating how Duringer had been captured with Crowley following the melodramatic siege on the upper West Side, declared Duringer admitted having pondered Virginia Brannen's fate for "four or five minutes," before he shot her.

DECIDED TO KILL HER.

"He found she loved another and decided to kill her because she would not marry him," said McLaughlin.

"On the evidence which we will submit the state can ask and expect a verdict of murder in the first degree."

Walter A. Lynch, former magistrate and chief counsel to Duringer, declared Rudy was hopelessly intoxicated when he went on the last ride with Virginia, Crowley and Robert Leclaire.

"Somebody said, 'Let's have some excitement,'" Lynch related.

TWO SHOTS FIRED

"Two shots were fired. The first went through the floor of the car, then the girl made an effort to get free.

"She tried to pull it from this man's hand. The gun was discharged. The second shot went through her body, killing her.

"We will show what he thought about this girl—that he had only the kindest feeling for her and never thought of killing her. He will testify to that himself."

IL DUCE HALTS CHURCH RIOTS

Rome, May 28 (AP)—Premier Mussolini, it was understood on excellent authority today, has called a halt in Fascist violence against members and property of Catholic organizations.

The disorders of last night, when a Catholic publishing house was attacked, Catholic papers and books burned and a portrait of Pope Pius XI trampled on the pavement, were considered by the Premier to be too serious to be overlooked.

Accordingly, instructions were passed down the line that the agitation among Fascist students must be stopped, and that the controversy must be limited to newspaper polemics.

SCHOOL PARADE IS PROTESTED

Protest against routing the annual schoolboys' parade Friday, June 5, through Tremont st. was voiced today to Acting Mayor Joseph McGrath by members of the Boston Retail Trade Board with stores on that artery.

Sales shrink 50 per cent when the street is tied up by parades, and the stores cannot afford to lose business in June, one of the best sales months of the year, McGrath was told.

The acting mayor called in the street commissioners to sit in on the conference. A route along Columbus ave. to Charles st. to Beacon st. to the Common was suggested by the businessmen.

McGrath suggested it might first be wise to ask the Governor if he would leave the State House to go to the Common for the review, and Chairman Thomas J. Hurley of the street board and other governors had refused to do so.

"But this Governor is a Democrat," said C. Crawford Holledge. "He might be willing to set the precedent."

LOVE DISPUTE TIES UP TRAFFIC

While Miss Jenney Nicholas, 24, of Boston st., Lynn, and her relatives wrangled today at the junction of Allerton and Chestnut sts., Lynn, over whether she should marry a suitor that had been selected for her, traffic was tied up.

The tieup was straightened out by Policemen Matthew Casey and Martin Murphy after an emergency call had been sent to police headquarters.

When the police arrived Miss Nicholas and her relatives, including her father, were screaming. A crowd of 100 looked on. Miss Jenny explained to Officers Casey and Murphy that her father had chosen a suitor for her whom she refused to marry. She informed the policemen that she had a friend of her own selection whom she liked much better and hoped to marry.

The police arranged for Ida Buckley of 52 Mt. Pleasant st. to accept Miss Nicholas to the Buckley home to end the mixup. Arrangements will be made later for further discussion at the Nicholas home.

FAIL TO FIND REPORT ON INQUEST

Haughn's Body Was Sent Home Without Autopsy by Bay State Officials

By THE MASKED REPORTER

Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American. All rights reserved.

There is no record of inquest into the death of Duncan Haughn, rum-runner.

There was no autopsy.

At the first district court of Barnstable, state police yesterday failed to find any report of Dr. Ernest F. Curry, medical examiner, on examination of the body.

On an unverified identification by a man who gave a false address, and no name save that of a mythical ship, Duncan Haughn's body, washed up on the shore at East Sandwich on Aug. 8, 1926, was sent home to Lunenburg, N. S.

From a mysterious source, $1000 was paid to his widow who suspected—as certain evidence now indicates—that he was slain.

As Haughn died, his cries smothered by fog off Cape Cod, so a superficial inquiry into his death was allowed to die in a fog of mystery and conflicting claims.

NAVY HONORS JOAN OF ARC

Rouen, France, May 28 (AP)—The solemn homage of the sailors of modern France to the leader of the French armies five centuries ago was the outstanding event of the sixth day of the commemorations in honor of St. Joan of Arc.

The companies of nine regular craft now moored nearby in the Seine and the naval cadets from the three dispatch boats lined up in the old market place, in front of the site of the girl-saint's martyrdom, and rendered full military honors.

Later the officers, headed by Admiral Laborde, were guests of the municipality at the City Hall, and France's naval band, second only in fame to that of the Republican Guard, delighted the Rouennais with an outdoor concert in the Jardin des Plantes.

Tomorrow will see a reconstruction of the scene of St. Joan's abjuration.

All of them bore price tags, but identification of the stores they were stolen from was missing.

Charley & Jim Take Turns

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

They're taking turns being optimistic.

And they're not giving us an 18-day diet of applesauce. Both boys refuse to clip the wages of their workingmen.

They control the steel works which is doing as well as can be expected. And while they have faith in the future they must admit we need another war to bring back the copper stocks.

There's one good thing about the depression we have just whipped. It eliminated the yes-men.

Even a motion picture magnate is liable to get an argument these days.

When a big man makes a statement today there isn't so much nodding north-and-south. Most of the boys wave their heads east and west.

HATCH LIDS OF SEA FOX FOUND

Stamford, Ct., May 28 (AP)—Search of Long Island Sound islands and shores for bodies or wreckage from the missing yacht "Sea Fox" today resulted in the discovery of two hatch covers, a cushion, and a man's coat.

The hatch covers were definitely identified as parts of the missing scoop. The cushion, it was reported, might have been a part of its equipment.

The coat was picked up off Old Field Point, R. I., by the Coast Guard destroyer Shaw from New London and contained a card in a pocket with the inscription, "Westport football club owls."

The commander of the Shaw said the coat had evidently been in the water for some time and expressed doubt that it belonged to any of the Sea Fox party.

Players Accused of Winding Up 1929 Season With Liquor Party in Locker Room

Investigation of conditions in Brookline high school was forecast today with charges by the American Legion committee that the high school 1929 football team trained on liquor through the season.

The committee, investigating the discharge of Physical Instructor John T. Connor, discovered other evidence of laxity in school discipline apart from that concerning the probe, according to M. A. Abrahamson, chairman.

Because these findings did not concern the case in the hands of the committee no reference to them was made in the report. The committee, however, in view of conditions, has prepared a private report which will be turned over to the board of selectmen for investigation, Mr. Abrahamson disclosed.

VERDICT TO STAND

The Brookline school committee remains firm on the dismissal of Connor despite the findings of the liquor committee.

Rev. Abbot Peterson, chairman of the school committee, in a letter to the Legion post said following investigation of the facts the vote of the school board relative to Connor's dismissal would stand.

The Legion investigation, sponsored by the Brookline post, of which Connor was formerly commander, has been going on since last February.

In addition to the sensational charges against the school seven, the committee also lays bare a long fight in Brookline school circles.

TELLS OF BIG SPREE

The Legion report specifically charges that following the final game of the 1929 season with Cambridge Latin school, the Brookline players had a drinking party in their locker room while still in uniform.

The principal part of the menu was rye whiskey and Italian wine, the report charges. It further states that liquor was used by various players on the team throughout the season.

The special committee was organized on February 23 following the discharge of Connor and the denial of the Legion post's request for a public hearing.

Connor was exonerated from all blame in the report of this committee.

The report states Connor joined the school as a teacher in physical education in 1928 and shortly afterwards a misunderstanding arose between him and Thomas H. Hines, physical education director in the Brookline schools.

QUIZZED ON LIQUOR

This resulted from alleged remarks offensive to Hines. He demanded an apology from Connor, who refused on the grounds he did not make the remarks.

The report states the committee is acquainted with the person who did. Following this the liquor question arose and Connor was summoned before Principal Winifred G. Akers to report on the matter.

HEAVY LOSS IN STORMS ABROAD

London, May 28 (AP)—One man was drowned and three persons were struck by lightning in a terrific electrical storm which swept southern England and Wales last night and struck the London area this morning.

In South Wales bridges were swept away, roads, fields and homes were flooded and there were several landslides, one of which wrecked a colliery train, injuring several miners.

Old residents of Cardiff said it was the worst storm in their memory. The streets were rivers and homes and business places were under several feet of water.

The bad weather was not confined to the British Isles. High winds and heavy rain laid waste to fields and gardens in the vicinity of Vendome, France, doing considerable damage.

Turkey was swept by floods, 14 persons being drowned.

AIR 'BOMBS' JAR UPPER N. Y.

New York, May 28 (AP)—Army officials today were investigating the dropping of two flashlight bombs from an airplane last night, the explosion of which rocked buildings and broke windows in the Columbia University district near the Hudson river.

The bombs, it was reported, were dropped from an army observation plane, manned by Capt. A. W. Stevens and Lieut. John Corkille, who left Mitchel Field on a night photographic expedition. Their orders, army authorities said, were to drop the light bombs and photograph West Point while over the Hudson.

Mrs. John Valenda of Riverside Drive reported to police the explosion knocked her to the floor. She was treated by a physician.

MANY FIRES DUE TO DEPRESSION

New York, May 28 (INS)—Business depression was blamed today by speakers at the annual meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters for an all-time record of fire losses, totalling for 1930 almost half a billion dollars.

The actual figure named in the report of the committee on statistics and origin of fires presented by J. L. Parsons, of New York, was given $490,739,136.

During the year 1930, he said, the average number of fires per city increased 15.84 per cent.

Against these increases, he said, the board, through various agencies, had been able to reduce the loss per fire 6.23 per cent.

Turkish Bath Alibi Saves Autoist on Drunk Charge

Chicago, May 28 (AP)—Everything was explained to the satisfaction of everybody concerned when John Tancyk was brought before Judge John J. Rooney.

"He was driving his automobile zig-zag all over the street," complained Policeman Francis E. Murray.

"It wasn't," the accused man said. "I had just had a Turkish bath and it made me so weak I couldn't drive straight."

"But," persisted the officer, "I smelled alcohol."

"That," said Tancyk, "was an alcohol rub I had at the bath."

PRISONER TO BE TAKEN TO COURT

By JAMES J. SMITH

Newport, R. I., May 28—Exactly a week before his scheduled trial here for the murder of Verna E. Russell, Elliott R. Hathaway, of Fall River, will be brought to Newport court next Monday.

Two motions filed yesterday in his behalf will be argued here, it was decided today.

Judge Charles A. Walsh, already assigned to the trial, was assigned to hear the motions by Presiding Justice Edward W. Blodgett at Providence.

One motion, requesting postponement of trial until October, Judge Walsh already has intimated he will deny. At a hearing on earlier defense motions he warned Hathaway there would be no postponement of trial because of an eleventh hour change of counsel.

TRIAL MAY BE DELAYED

Greatest interest centers on the other motion, which asks a court order submitting for examination of the defense, the clothing worn by the student nurse on the night she was slain and the medical reports of pathologists who viewed her body.

If the latter motion should be granted there is a possibility of trial postponement due to the destruction of Miss Russell's bloomers at the first autopsy as related in an exclusive story in the Boston Evening American yesterday.

The motion to examine the clothing was made soon after a local undertaker had confirmed the story that the bloomers had vanished.

McLYMAN TO ARGUE

Atty.-Gen. Benjamin M. McLyman will argue against the motions. Yesterday he said he had not been advised the bloomers were missing and that if they were it was not important. Today he said:

"I prefer not to discuss that matter until the trial opens. We are informed completely about the clothing. We are satisfied with the situation." Of the medical report, he said:

"That report is now evidence and I am not going to give it to defense counsel. Dr. Louis Hathaway, brother of the defendant, has read it. We will not turn it over to the defense at this time."

ACCIDENTALLY DESTROYED.

Why McLyman had not been notified that he bloomers were destroyed is a puzzling feature of the case.

His view that their destruction was unimportant is not the view of Attys. George Hurley of Providence and John Cotter of this city, who late yesterday filed the defense motions.

Dr. Elmus Peasley, Truesdale Hospital pathologist, who performed the actual work of the autopsy, stated that the bloomers had been turned over to the State police, along with the rest of the girl's clothing.

It was Dr. Peasley who admitted to Dist.-Atty. Crowley and Dr. George Burgess Magrath of Boston that they had been accidentally destroyed by the undertaker's 15-year-old assistant with waste material while he was cleaning up the place after the autopsy.

PENN TIGHTENS GRIP ON N. E. RAIL LINES

Continues to Strengthen Its Position as Officials Talk, Crooker Warns

Providence, R. I., May 28—While New England business interests are discussing the best forms of disposition or consolidation of their railroads, the problem is being quietly solved by one of the trunk lines, according to George L. Crooker, chairman of the Rhode Island committee.

In a statement issued today, Crooker points out that the Pennsylvania road is quietly buying control of the New Haven and the Boston & Maine, which handle 75 per cent of the New England tonnage.

NOT COMPETING LINES

The members, Crooker says, acknowledge the Pennsylvania has a right to buy controlling interest in a line not competing with it and further conclude there is practically no competition between the New Haven and Boston & Maine roads.

However, Crooker states, it is apparent there is some question in the minds of the Pennsylvania officials regarding their right to purchase controlling interest in the Boston & Maine. They have made no direct purchase of any of that stock, the purchase being made by the Pennroad Corp.

HASTY ACTION NEEDED

Crooker says that if New England does not want Pennsylvania's control there are but two avenues of escape and both soon will be closed.

These, he says, are to prove competition between the New Haven and Boston & Maine or the consolidation of the Boston & Maine with another strong trunk line, a shoe manufacturer.

competitor of the Pennsylvania.

Crooker warns that New England must act at once, as the Pennsylvania is consolidating its position, while New England people are discussing theoretical solutions of their rail problems.

BRANNEN GIRL'S SLAYER SAYS IT WAS ACCIDENT

Counsel for Duringer Says He Will Tell on Stand How Shooting Occurred

New York, May 28 (INS)—Red-handed, deliberate murder? Or an accidental shooting of the woman he loved?

The jury, just completed today, which will try Rudolph "Fat" Duringer, pale of Francis "Two-Gun" Crowley, for the murder of Virginia Brannen of Bangor, Me., dancer, had these conflicting versions laid before them today in Bronx County court as Duringer's trial for his life got under way.

District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin, relating how Duringer and Crowley captured with Crowley following the melodramatic siege on the upper West Side, declared Duringer admitted having pondered Virginia Brannen's fate for "four or five minutes," before he shot her.

STOLEN BABY FOUND.

The infant had been missing 19½ hours when located in the Bartlett home by Deputy Sheriff Charles W. Jerome. A city-wide search was in full swing and outside of Portland, state troopers were visiting gypsy camps in belief that the infant might be concealed in one of them.

Conversation of children in the street about "Mrs. Bartlett's new baby" led the sheriff to the home, where he found Mrs. Bartlett and the baby in the same bed.

She at first protested that Gloria was her own, but when Jerome found the carriage in which the baby had disappeared from in front of a Congress st. store, she confessed.

Police said she told them that her husband had threatened to leave her unless she had a baby, and she kidnaped Gloria because she was so young she thought she could fool her husband.

POSED AS MOTHER

The husband, Edward Bartlett, a private in the 5th Infantry, was summoned for questioning. He told authorities that his wife said the baby was born to her at the exact hour that she kidnaped it.

He denied ever threatening to leave his wife because she had been unable to bear him children. He always hoped to become a father, though, he said.

Mrs. Bartlett will be arraigned on the kidnaping charge tomorrow.

As British industry drops, crime rises. Home office criminal statistics show a three per cent increase in criminality. The total is comparatively small. One United States city supplies more crime in a year than all the British islands.

Depression and idleness have bad effects everywhere.

Prudhomme said long ago, and wisely, "Monarchies are destroyed by poverty, republics by wealth."

But the great menace to the new Spanish republic is not wealth, but poverty.

Gold is being exported from Spain, the value of the Spanish currency is falling, and a country, republic or monarchy, with money that lacks buying power, has trouble ahead.

Everybody knows that reducing wages, generally speaking, means to prolong the depression. Resumption of business depends on buying power. Lower wages mean less money to spend.

On the other hand lower wages might be better than no wages. And incidentally many union men, by private individual agreement, are working far below the former union rate.

It is a difficult question. Many unions might be willing to make temporary concessions in the general interest, but they feel that if wages were reduced now, a long fight might be necessary to bring them back.

Relating his actions before the crash in Long Island sound May 7, Capt. Corning told steamboat inspectors at the Appraisers Stores today his ship was reversed 30 seconds after masthead lights of the Trimount were sighted.

The New York, with 200 passengers aboard, was plying 12 knots through dense fog, five knots slower than normal, when the Trimount was sighted, he said.

SCHOOL PARADE IS PROTESTED

Protest against routing the annual schoolboys' parade Friday, June 5, through Tremont st. was voiced today to Acting Mayor Joseph McGrath by members of the Boston Retail Trade Board with stores on that artery.

Sales shrink 50 per cent when the street is tied up by parades, and the stores cannot afford to lose business in June, one of the best sales months of the year, McGrath was told.

The acting mayor called in the street commissioners to sit in on the conference. A route along Columbus ave. to Charles st. to Beacon st. to the Common was suggested by the businessmen.

McGrath suggested it might first be wise to ask the Governor if re would leave the State House to go to the Common for the review, and Chairman Thomas J. Hurley of the street board said other governors had refused to do so.

"But this Governor is a Democrat," said C. Crawford Hollidge. "He might be willing to set the precedent."

FAIL TO FIND REPORT ON INQUEST

Haughn's Body Was Sent Home Without Autopsy by Bay State Officials

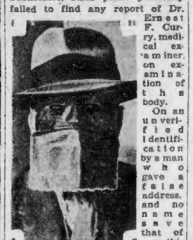
By THE MASKED REPORTER

Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American. All rights reserved.

There is no record of inquest into the death of Duncan Haughn, rum-runner.

There was no autopsy.

At the first district court of Barnstable, state police yesterday failed to find any report of Dr. Ernest F. Curry, medical examiner on examination of the body.



On an unverified identification by a man who gave a false address, and no name save that of a mythical ship, Duncan Haughn's body washed up on the shore at East Sandwich on Aug. 8, 1925, was sent home to Lunenburg, N. S.

From a mysterious source, $1000 was paid to his widow who suspected—as certain evidence now indicates—that he was slain.

As Haughn died, his cries smothered by fog off Cape Cod, so a superficial inquiry into his death was allowed to die in a fog of mystery and conflicting claims.

The official investigation that I started with my first story of Duncan Haughn, in this expose of an

STOLEN GOWNS FOUND IN RAID

Acting on an informer's tip, Boston police today recovered 75 dresses in a Revere house, believed to be the cache of a band of store thieves.

Special Officers William Gouldston, Joseph Bonner and J. L. Murphy of the bureau of criminal investigation seized the garments in a raid on the house in Dix st., Revere.

All of them bore price tags, but identification of the stores they were stolen from was missing.

While no arrests have been made, police admitted that at least one person is sought in connection with the thefts, but they refused to reveal whether it was a man or a woman.

The dresses were taken to police headquarters to await identification by department store officials.

Charley & Jim Take Turns

—By Arthur "Bugs" Baer—

They're taking turns being optimistic.

And they're not giving us an 18-day diet of applesauces. Both boys refuse to clip the wages of their workingmen.

They control the steel works which is doing as well as can be expected. And while they have faith in the future they must admit we need another war to bring back the copper stocks.

There's one good thing about the depression we have just whipped. It eliminated the yeamen.

Even a motion picture magnate is liable to get an argument these days.

When a big man makes a statement today there isn't so much nodding north-and-south. Most of the boys wave their heads east and west.

HATCH LIDS OF SEA FOX FOUND

Stamford, Ct., May 28 (AP)—Search of Long Island Sound islands and shores for bodies or wreckage from the missing yacht "Sea Fox" today resulted in the discovery of two hatch covers, a cushion, and a man's coat.

The hatch covers were definitely identified as parts of the missing scoop. The cushion, it was reported, might have been a part of its equipment.

The coat was picked up off Old Field Point, R. I., by the Coast Guard destroyer Shaw from New London and contained a card in a pocket with the inscription, "Westport football club owls."

The commander of the Shaw said the coat had evidently been in the water for some time and expressed doubt that it belonged to any of the Sea Fox party.

LIQUOR REPORT TELLS ABOUT RUM REVEL

Investigation of conditions in Brookline high school was forecast today with charges by the American Legion committee that the high school 1929 football team trained on liquor through the season.

The committee, investigating the discharge of Physical Instructor John T. Connor, discovered other evidence of laxity in school discipline apart from that concerning the probe, according to M. A. Abrahamson, chairman.

Because these findings did not concern the case in the hands of the committee no reference to them was made in the report. The committee, however, in view of conditions, has prepared a private report which will be turned over to the board of selectmen for investigation, Mr. Abrahamson disclosed.

VERDICT TO STAND

The Brookline school committee remains firm on the dismissal of the school committee, in a letter to the Legion post said following investigation of the facts the vote of the school board relative to Connor's dismissal would stand.

The Legion investigation, sponsored by the Brookline post, of which Connor was formerly commander, has been going on since last February.

In addition to the sensational charges against the school eleven, the committee also lays bare a long fight in Brookline school circles.

TELLS OF BIG SPREE

The Legion report specifically charges that following the final game of the 1929 season with Cambridge Latin school, the Brookline players had a drinking party in their locker room while still in uniform.

The principal part of the menu was rye whiskey and Italian wine, the report charges. It further states that liquor was used by various players on the team throughout the season.

The special committee was organized on February 23 following the discharge of Connor and the denial of the Legion request for a public hearing.

Connor was exonerated from all blame in the report of this committee.

The report states Connor joined the school as a teacher in physical education in 1928 and shortly afterwards a misunderstanding arose between him and Thomas H. Hines, physical education director in the Brookline schools.

QUIZZED ON LIQUOR

This resulted from alleged remarks offensive to Hines. He demanded an apology from Connor, who refused on the grounds he did not make the remarks.

The report states the committee is acquainted with the person who did. Following this the liquor question arose and Connor was summoned before Principal Winifred G. Akers to report on the matter.

NAVY HONORS JOAN OF ARC

Rouen, France, May 28 (AP)—The solemn homage of the sailors of modern France to the leader of the French armies five centuries ago was the outstanding event of the sixth day of the commemorations in honor of St. Joan of Arc.

The companies of nine regular craft now moored nearby in the Seine and the naval cadets from the three dispatch boats lined up in the old market place, in front of the site of the girl-saint's martyrdom, and rendered full military honors.

Later the officers, headed by Admiral Laborde, were guests of the municipality at the City Hall and France's naval band, second only in fame to that of the Republican Guard, delighted the Rouennais with an outdoor concert in the Jardin des Plantes.

Tomorrow will see a reconstruction of the scene of St. Joan's abjuratin.

When the police arrived sfies Nicholas and her relatives, including her father, were screaming. A crowd of 100 looked on. Miss Jenny explained to Officers Casey and Murphy that her father had chosen a suitor for her whom she refused to marry. She informed the policemen that she had a friend of her own selection, whom she liked much better and hoped to marry.

The police arranged for Ida Buckley of 52 Mt. Vernant st. to escort Miss Nicholas to the Buckley home to end the mixup. Arrangements will be made later for further discussion at the Nicholas home.

Old residents of Cardiff said it was the worst storm in their memory. The streets were rivers and homes and business places were under several feet of water.

"That," said Tancyk, "was an alcohol rub I had at the bath."

CLARA'S ROMANCE WITH COOPER

SYNOPSIS:

(In previous installments Louella O. Parsons, film critic, who knows Clara Bow better than any person in the world, described the joys and griefs of the flaming "It" girl, her entrance in the Hollywood film colony and her first films. Today Miss Parsons tells of Clara's meeting with Elinor Glyn and her romance short-lived as it was, with Gary Cooper.)

CHAPTER 10

Clara acknowledged the introduction, but she felt no interest in the shy youth who blushed when she spoke to him and who so plainly showed his infatuation for her. She didn't give Gary a second thought until they played a love scene. He kissed her with a passion that caused her to look at him in surprise.

"You are beautiful," he whispered.

Gary, who had for months cherished a secret admiration for Clara, was suddenly given the chance to demonstrate his feeling. Those who were on the set at the time, said you would never suspect the shy Mr. Cooper of such depth of feeling.

Clara's romance with Gary started then and there. So became tremendously fond of him. Gilbert Roland, sulking in jealous rage, found new interests. Gilbert probably didn't know genuine love at the time. He was just a boy and his madness over Clara was the outpouring of immature youth.

Gary comes of a real strait-laced family. His father was formerly a judge in Montana and he has watched over his boy with a devoted care. He had no wish to have Gary fall a victim to any of these Hollywood sirens. When Gary started staying out at night, the judge grew suspicious.

"Where were you, boy?" he asked.

Gary, infatuated with Clara Bow, finally admitted that he was in love.

"Who is the girl?" asked the parent.

"Her name is Clara Bow," he replied, blushing to the roots of his hair at the mere mention of his lady love's name.

"Clara Bow!" thundered the judge. "Isn't that the girl over whom young Savage tried to kill himself?"

"But, Father," protested Gary, "Clara is innocent. She didn't let him so much as touch her hand."

But both Gary's father and mother were convinced that Clara was only a Hollywood vamp and that the sooner they succeeded in breaking up his romance with Clara the better.

Tiu Lorraine, who acted as Clara's companion, told me that Clara laughed the first few times when Gary had to go home, but after a time she tired of too much family interference. Gary, too, was taciturn. He had little to say and Clara, who loved a good time with plenty and lively conversation, decided that she and Gary were not meant for each other. They parted.

Today if you ask Gary anything about Clara he will tell you that she is a fine girl, even at the risk of incurring the displeasure of Lupe Velez, his current fiancee.

All things come to an end eventually and so the unlucky 1926 passed out of Clara's life, leaving its mark, it is true, but Clara did not let her trouble make her bitter. Later you will find she was just as gullible and just as trusting as if she had never been through those bitter experiences.

You would have thought that Clara would not have trusted Daisy Devoe, who was obviously out to get all that she could from her generous employer. You would have thought that she might have seen through Dr. William Earl Pearson's acceptance of the valuable gifts that she made him. But Clara, at her life, had shut her eyes to the faults of people she likes. Unless she is faced with the irrefutable proof she never believed that those whom she selects as her friends can do her any wrong.

An outstanding event of 1927 was Clara's meeting with Elinor Glyn, noted English novelist. Madam Glyn, whose novel of "Three Weeks" had made her famous as an exponent of love and sex, wrote a serial for the Cosmopolitan magazine called "It." The word "It" went through the country like wildfire. According to Mrs. Glyn it was more than just sex attraction—it was that illusive something that attracts men to women and women to men. Those of us without Madam Glyn's flare for brevity contented ourselves with defining it as just common, ordinary, garden-variety sex appeal.

Perhaps I'm wrong in saying that it was the first of the sex plays to come to the screen. But, at any rate, when it was announced that Paramount had bought Madam Glyn's serial for Clara, the fan magazine and movie columns were full of the story of the red-haired Clara Bow, irrepressible flapper and delight of all the younger generation, who had been chosen to carry the message of "It" to the world.

The combination of the stately, aristocratic Madam Glyn and the vivacious, fun-loving Clara Bow, was one that attracted world-wide attention. Madam Glyn did her best to make a lady of Clara.

"We understood each other," said the author, "because we both have red hair."

Clara at first accepted Madam Glyn as a necessary evil. Then she grew to like her. Never in her harum-scarum life had she had any woman of Elinor Glyn's intelligence and breeding show interest in her. Madam Glyn, who gave the swankiest dinner parties in Hollywood, invited the "It" Girl to meet her select friends.

Clara, at first, tried to avoid going to these dinners. She was afraid she might be snubbed and Clara, let it be said, has never had social aspirations. She has been bitterly conscious of her poverty. She has always feared that perhaps people who knew of the tragedy of her childhood might not feel that she was their equal.

Clara Under Knife Meets Real Friends

Clara did not know of the kindness of the real people in Hollywood. She met at these dinner parties. Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Marion Davies and the rest of the cream of the Hollywood social world. Instead of snubbing her, they gave her a cordial welcome and expressed an interest in her and a hope that they might grow to know her better.

During the months of 1927, when Clara saw Madam Glyn almost daily, she bought herself new evening frocks, carefully supervised by her chaperone.

Clara, who has always been quick to learn and intelligent, realized that Mrs. Glyn's world presented men and women who read books, who had traveled and who were able to talk about things other than just petty gossip and personalities.

Clara must have remembered the little girl who traveled on the train for the first time and who carried her luggage in a papier-mache suitcase. She must have thought that this Clara Bow had gone a long way from the poor little Brooklyn girl who visited every compartment and every drawing room on the train when she made the long trip from New York to California in company with Maxine Alton.

Miss Alton says, in speaking of Clara, "She was wild with excitement on that trip — eager to learn and desirous of knowing the things that make for culture. I had never met a child as primitive, as good-hearted and as lovable. I still have the contract which carries on the back the notation written by her father asking me to meet her at the information bureau at the Grand Central."

Mrs. Glyn loves Clara to this day. "I felt for her," Mrs. Glyn told me. "A keen sympathy. I realized this child had been denied a mother's understanding. I knew that Mrs. Bow had been ill and through Clara's childhood and girlhood. I felt if she could have had a healthy mother who could have guided her, her life might have been different. Clara has so much that is beautiful in her nature, so much that is fine and everything that is real."

Clara, honest with herself and honest with the world, was then never to understand that certain people sought introductions to her only because she was a famous star. She has always been trusting and when she has found that people with whom she surrounded herself were unworthy, it has been a bitter blow.

For months Clara worked with an ugly pain in her right side. The doctors diagnosed it as appendicitis. Finally, one day, her physician said he thought she ought to have her appendix out.

MET RESCUE PARTY.

Piccard and Kipfer were met by a rescue party midway between the scene of the descent and Zwiesel-stein, Austria, headquarters of the Austrian Tyrol Gendarmerie.

News of the safe descent came as something of a surprise, as well as a great relief, as hope for the scientists' safety had been virtually abandoned.

The fact that the explorers were said to have left their aluminum ball and set out on foot for the nearest settlement explained why searching parties that located the balloon this morning sent back word indicating the scientists might have lost their lives.

Searchers in airplanes and on motorcycles reported seeing the balloon start its descent from the Gurgler Fernar glacier, about 8000 feet above sea level, but that no sign of life was visible.

Piccard and Kipfer, confident of success in their daring attempt to soar higher than man ever had risen before, left Augsburg, Bavaria, at 3:37 a.m. yesterday. In their hermetically sealed sphere they had sufficient oxygen to sustain life in an extremely rarefied atmosphere for 12 hours.

FEARED OXYGEN GONE

At a late hour last evening, the giant balloon was seen drifting slowly southward at an altitude of between 32,000 and 35,000 feet. Then suddenly it dropped from sight and it became obvious the expedition had ended somewhere in the Austrian or Italian Tyrol.

Grave fears were felt that the scientists' long sojourn in the upper atmosphere had exhausted their supply of oxygen, and experts believed that would have been impossible for them to open the portholes of the gondola to permit natural air to enter because of their great altitude.

Prof. Piccard himself intended to land within 12 hours of the take-off, but admitted when he started that descent would be difficult owing to the absence of sand ballast and the lack of a glass window in the bottom of the globe.

He planned to let the huge balloon drift slowly to earth, depending upon atmospheric pressure to deflate the bag gradually.

No Weather Up Where Sky Ball Went, Says Kimball

New York May 28 (INS)—Secrets of the mysterious stratosphere, the upper region of the atmosphere, probably have been discovered by the two Swiss scientists who are reported to have reached a height of 52,500 feet in a balloon, Dr. James Kimball of the United States Weather Bureau said today.

Dr. Kimball said the two balloonists, Prof. Auguste Piccard and Charles Kipfertropa first passed through the stratosphere, that portion of the atmosphere which rises about six or eight miles above the crust of the earth.

Before passing into the outer crust, the stratosphere, he said, they had to pass through a kind of dividing region known as the tropopause.

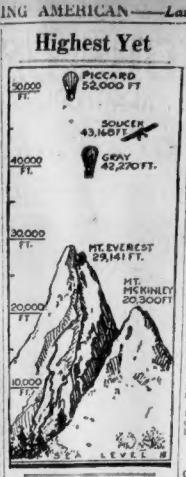
"When they passed into the stratosphere they entered a region hitherto unexplored and about which very little is known. I assume, of course, that they rose to the reported height of 52,500 feet," Dr. Kimball said.

"One does know, however, that in the stratosphere the temperature does not change with altitude. The air is very rarefied and the air pressure is about one-quarter of the pressure on earth.

"Weather does not exist in the stratosphere. All weather is manufactured in the lower region of the atmosphere, the troposphere. There is no moisture in the stratosphere. Of course, it is impossible for a human being to live in this region without mechanical means of supplying oxygen.

"This region also holds many of the secrets of radio. I refer to the long wave-length electromagnetic radiation or wireless waves."

Highest Yet



The chart above shows the comparison between the Piccard balloon flight and other famous flights. Piccard went up approximately 52,500 feet. Lieut. Apollo Soucek holds the record for planes at 43,168 feet. The highest previous balloon ascension was by Lieut. Harold Gray, who rose 42,270 feet.

FEW HAVE GONE TO HIGH SPOTS

New York, May 28 (AP)—Balloons have attracted daredevils—scientific and otherwise—ever since a couple of French villagers back in the Eighteenth Century experimented with bags of smoke.

Jean Francois Pilatre de Rozier was the first human being to go aloft. In October, 1783, he made several flights in a captive balloon.

From that time on, many experiments were made, culminating in the flights of James Glaisher, British scientist, who in May, 1866, reported that he reached the height of 37,000 feet. There is some doubt of the figure as he was unconscious at the higher levels.

Glaisher found that at 10,000 feet some persons turned purple in the face; breathing became difficult. He discovered that when the air was thinst the barking of a dog could be heard at two miles, the roar of a railroad train at four miles.

Since Glaisher, many scientific flights have been made, but few observers have ascended to great heights, so great were the dangers.

C. H. Howe Expires

Leominster, May 28 (AP) — Charles H. Howe, 80, comb manufacturer and a pioneer in this country in the commercial use of celluloid, died today.

LAKE SEES HIS DREAM TRUE

New London, Ct., May 28—Simon Lake, designer of the transarctic submarine Nautilus, today is elated that the moment is at hand for the little mechanical whale to begin her long perilous voyage to the North Pole.

For Simon Lake, now 84, departure of the submersible from this port, means realizing a dream of more than 40 years' standing. Reading Jules Vernes' masterpiece, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," first stimulated Lake's imagination. It led him to envision a boat that could dive under the Arctic ice crust.

It led him to become an inventor, won him world-wide fame and now the Nautilus chief of all his dreams, is about to start on her great adventure. Lake predicted:

"I believe the sturdy little Nautilus will confute all her critics and will successfully usher in a voyage epochal in the annals of all the nations. There have been some delays, but I may be pardoned for insisting on mechanical perfection where the lives of so many gallant men are at stake.

"But I am proud of the Nautilus and believe she is capable of carrying her scientific voyagers across the Arctic sea.

Ride on ALLSTATES Over the Holiday

Surely Know Their Dollars and Cents

EIGHT million people are too many to be mistaken. And in five short years that vast army of American motorists have turned their backs on their old tire favorites and changed to ALLSTATE. They recognized the biggest money's worth in the tire world. They know that in 1925 they paid $20.30 for a 29x4.40 tire. Then along came ALLSTATE. Now they pay $4.98 for a 29x4.40 ALLSTATE balloon. They know that every step of the way in this downward march of prices ALLSTATE set the pace. On the basis of mile for mile value on the road this wonder tire has gotten their vote.

Of course, there is a reason for such leadership.

ALLSTATE is deliberately made a better tire. It was designed by America's foremost tire engineers, and made according to Sears-Roebuck's rigid specifications, by one of the world's most successful tire manufacturers. Then it is brought directly from the factory to you by our own system of mail order houses and retail stores—at one modest profit. No wonder then it gives extra miles of service—yet costs a full 25 percent less than any tire worthy of comparison.

GREEN PRESSES PLAN TO AVOID 'HARD WINTER'

Washington, May 28 (AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor sees indications of a hard winter ahead. He believes its effects could be minimized by adoption of a remedial program.

Asserting that a less than normal increase in Spring employment this year forecasts a worse winter than last, unless immediate steps are taken. He proposed last night that employers guarantee continued work to as many as possible.

"A guarantee of employment to even a portion of the country's work forces would help business revival enormously and bring relief from anxiety to thousands of workers' families," he said.

He estimated that of 6,300,000 out of jobs in January, less than 3,500,000 had found work.

As a further remedy he reiterated a request that "some thoughtless employers" discontinue "sniping at wage standards." A pay-cutting policy, he continued, engenders a fear for the future that leads men to buy only necessities.

All available work, he said, should be divided pro rata among employes since each man has a "moral claim" to at least a share

Man About Town

By AL DUFFY

ALFA ALPHA CAPONE

Warren O'Hara, who is in town managing Miss Jane Cowl, has a Chicago yarn which is a honey.

Warren was company manager of "Sons o' Guns" before and after Jack Donahue's death and when the show played Chicago, Barry Richman had been drafted to take the place of Boston's beloved comedian. Now it seems that Richman is a great favorite with Al Capone, who is one of the town's better known vagrants.

At any rate, after the show arrived in Chi, Barry called up a bootlegger, ordered three cases of Scotch, two cases of gin and a case of champagne. It was delivered in his hotel and Barry spent a pleasant afternoon stowing it away in his closet.

He went to the theater and, after the opening, he invited several friends to his room for a sociable drink. Imagine his surprise when he opened the cupboard and, like Old Mother Hubbard, found it was bare. The next day his bootlegger dropped around and casually inquired if he needed any more liquor. Barry smelled a rat.

"Why should I need any more liquor? Didn't I get plenty of it from you yesterday?" he asked.

"Oh, I just thought you might have run out of some of it," the legger replied. "Call me up if you do."

No sooner had he left the room than Barry called up his buddy, Al Capone, and spilled the entire story to him. Al listened quietly and when Barry had finished he asked, "Who sold you the stuff?"

Harry told him the bootlegger's name and Capone said, "O. K. I'll take care of it." After the show that night Harry returned to his room and rushed to the closet. There, neatly arranged, row upon row, just as he had fixed them, were all the bottles that had disappeared so mysteriously.

And, in addition, there were two extra cases with a neat card reading:

"Compliments of Al Capone."

NEW WITNESS IN SLAYING OF 2

Los Angeles May 28 (INS)—Jean Riley, blonde motion picture actress, today had injected new theories into the riddle of the double murders of Charles Crawford, political boss, and Herbert Spencer, reform magazine editor.

Miss Riley told Special Prosecutor Ford a traffic signal had caused her to be parked in front of Crawford's office, where the shooting occurred, at a time when three men, not two as previously reported, flee from the murder scene.

First she said, was David H. Clark, who is charged with murder. Herbert Spencer, fatally wounded, staggered out next, dying within a few feet of her. The third man, according to her statement, was Ray Radke, private secretary of Crawford.

Miss Riley explained she had not voluntarily given her information before because she did not wish to be involved.

told me that he had heard that Chic Sale was building double-deckers these days, what with the depression and all that.

Old Kate, Race Card Purveyor to Kings, Dies in London

London, May 28 (AP)—Old Kate is dead.

The passing of this picturesque woman who sold race cards on every British course for half a century occurred today. Patronized by kings, peers, race-horse owners, jockeys and thousands of fans, Kate became a national character.

Although known as Mrs. McNeil, her real name was a mystery even to herself. She was obliged to quit work two years ago, but a public subscription, to which King George contributed, enabled her to pass her last days comfortably.

The public first became acquainted with Kate when she exhibited anxiety for the king during his illness of 1928. He sent her a message of thanks.

BIRTH CONTROL ISSUE SHUNNED

Pittsburgh, May 28 (AP)—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., began its deliberations today freed of the responsibility of either approving or condemning birth control as a matter of church policy.

Overwhelmed with protests from Presbyterians throughout the country, the assembly special committee on marriage, divorce and remarriage yesterday decided to eliminate from its report a section urging approval of birth control when practised because of economic necessity or because of maternal health.

With that controversy out of the way, the assembly moved today to the choice of a new moderator, with the election of the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge of Philadelphia considered assured. Dr. Mudge is now stated clerk of the church.

The assembly is expected to take further action toward organic union with the Methodist and Reformed churches, already tentatively approved.

RARE RELICS OF PREHISTORIC AGE FOUND

New Haven, May 28 (INS)—Officials of Yale University today announced that "very gratifying results" have been obtained from excavations being made at three Palestine sites that are being dug by workers of the American School of Prehistoric Research under Prof. George Grant McCurdy, of Yale.

The statement said also:

"The sites include Mugharet-El-Wad, Mugharet-Es-Schrool, Mugharet-El-Tabun, and Mugharet-El-Kebra. The last is at Zicron Yacob and is proving to be an exceptionally rich site. In the deposits containing a culture known as mesolithic (middle stone age, 20,000 to 10,000 B. C.) —older than the neolithic and younger than the paleolithic—they have already found a mass burial of eight or ten interments.

"Near the skeletons was a cache of 150 bone beads. Mesolithic microliths are very abundant. Objects of bone are also abundant and well preserved. Many harpoons have also been found.

"The prize specimen is a complete haft in bond of knife or sickle twelve inches in length. The animal represented in the round end terminating the handle is probably a goat."

Sid Terris Sues Mother for $150,000

New York, May 28—Sid Terris, East Side boxer, has been granted an injunction preventing his mother from disposing of approximately $150,000, which he claims he gave her for "safe keeping."

Terris has started suit to recover the money from his mother, Mrs. Gussie Terris, who claims the family resources amount to less than $75,000. Part of that sum, she said, was contributed by four other sons and two daughters.

They each posted $500 bail. Police said they found 120 gallons of liquor in Kaplan's machine and 55 gallons in Levine's.

BERLIN TO ASK HALT ON DEBT

Berlin, May 28 (INS)—Germany intends to ask signatories to the Young plan for a 20 per cent reduction in reparations payments.

Statisticians are preparing figures to submit to Prime Minister MacDonald when they meet at Chequers, designed to show that the rise of gold and the fall of commodity prices have increased the reparations figures to that extent.

It is reported Great Britain favors coupling German and British efforts in an attempt to win American support for a scaling down of debts as a move to aid disarmament.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN 5 RAIDS AT HULL

Armed with search warrants a raiding squad of the Hull Police Department, headed by Police Commissioner Henry Stevens, descended upon two hotels, two restaurants and two private homes at Nantasket Beach early today and seized a large quantity of liquor.

The services of several large trucks were required to transport the seized contraband to police headquarters.

The places raided and amounts of liquor seized were:

The Berkeley House, 314 quarts of beer.

Metropolitan House, Park ave., 12 pints of gin.

Two restaurants in Atlantic ave., five gallons of alcohol, 90 pints of gin, 49 pints of whiskey and one quart of alcohol.

A residence in Nantasket ave., yielded 1480 quarts of beer and two gallons of alcohol.

From another residence in Elm ave., 256 bottles of beer and 25 gallons of beer in vats were taken.

The warrants were obtained following sales during the past three months at places where the liquor was seized, according to Commissioner Stevens.

PASTOR'S PAY $3 A WEEK

For $3 a week Rev. Anthony Tkach was hired two years ago to be pastor of St. Michael's Greek Orthodox Church in Lynn, it was testified today at a master's hearing on the dispute between the pastor and his flock.

The hearing, conducted by John Hamlin, paved as master by the superior court is on the church corporation's charges that Rev. Tkach failed to account for certain funds, and is also guilty of trespass, in that he refuses to abide by an ouster vote.

Wasil Mosychuck of Crosby st. gave the testimony about the salary. Yesterday the pastor was denied a warrant against five church members as a result of a riot Sunday in which he was roughly handled.

MORE FACTS IN MYSTERY DEATH BARED

NO PROOF GIVEN

Now let me take you further into this mystery—he claimed murder of a rum runner suspected of being a federal spotter.

I told you yesterday that Corp Harold McFarlane of the state police, now chief of police at Hingham, was the investigating officer from the Barnstable barracks.

There is no state police record of official notification that the body was identified.

McFarlane remembers, he says, that he did not learn of an identification until after the body had been released by the medical examiner for burial.

He never saw or talked with the man who identified it and was surprised to learn it had been released, he said. As Dr. Curry accepted from the fictitious Capt. C. E. Johnson (in reality the rum runner, Willie Wagner) the story that Haughn was a fisherman and had been washed overboard, so McFarlane accepted from Dr. Curry, without question, this same version.

McFarlane's official report is D. 897, case 15925 in the state police files. It is as follows:

"Body washed ashore at Scorten Beach, Sandwich, Aug. 8, 1926. Found a body of a man on the beach and notified Medical Examiner Curry of Sagamore and the Nickerson undertaking rooms and had the body removed to the undertaker's.

$12 IN POCKET

"White, five feet nine inches, weight 175, between 38 and 40 years old, brown eyes, dark hair, medium build, smooth shaven. Teeth upper: first left from center and third from back on left missing. Teeth lower: one on right lower missing.

"Blue shirt, Big Yank brand, size 15. Blue serge pants, white cotton union suit, trade mark 'U. S. G. High rubber boots, size 9 D. Square Thread brand manufactured by Cambridge Rubber Co. Two pairs of socks blue ribbed outside, gray woolen inside. Belt size 36, black with brown and white stripes on edge.

So much for the report of then Corp. McFarlane and the police participation in the case.

Now for the records of Medical Examiner Curry, which are complete in detail as to the body itself but incomplete as to the identification.

It will be noted in Dr. Curry's record to follow that he found no tattoo marks upon the body.

This is very unusual in the light of Undertaker Nickerson's story, which is to the effect that identification was made in part through a tattooed flag upon Haughn's arm.

While he does not so state in his record, Dr. Curry's opinion of the appearance of the man who identified the body was that it was wholly consistent with that of a sea captain.

Undertaker Nickerson's memory is that the man who identified Duncan Haughn's body was 27 or 30 years old, well dressed and well educated.

'NO INQUEST RECORD'

Other inconsistencies I have previously related—the medical examiner accepting a story that death occurred four days before finding of the body; the undertaker believing that a period of two or three weeks had intervened.

Dr. Curry's records of the case, in copy, have been forwarded to Capt. Charles Beaupre of the state police with the following note by Lieut. Edward J. Gully:

"Inclosed herewith please find copy of report of Ernest F. Curry, medical examiner at Barnstable. He is of the opinion that he sent his report to the first district court of Barnstable but inquiry there by Patrolman Daily failed to reveal presence of it. Nor was there any record of any inquest being held there."

We come now to Medical Examiner Curry's records which contain the following notations:

"In conformity with section 13 of chapter 38 of public statutes, I make, herewith, record of examination of body of Duncan Horne (note spelling), Lunenburg, N. S.

"Found on beach at Scorten, East Sandwich.

"Body came ashore early today. John Carlton of East Sandwich notified me. Body was found on shore in back of Carlton's house, partially covered with seaweed.

"One rubber boot came ashore near body, the other was on foot. The head covered with his twisted blue shirt.

"Body sent to Undertaker Nickerson and viewed completed there.

"NO TATTOO MARKS"

"Body stripped of clothes shows the scalp swollen, face swollen and discolored black, arms discolored by decomposition changes but are fairly firm. Epidermis of hands hangs loose. Torso discolored with blue and green spots of post mortem changes . . . The face tissues are in pretty good condition although swollen and discolored. They are not broken and are fairly hard. The legs are in very good condition, skin is white and not macerated.

"There are no tattoo marks, no loss of fingers or toes and no scars on body.

"This is the body of a man between 36 and 40 years of age, five feet nine and one-half tall, weighing about 170 pounds, brown eyes and dark hair, which is thick. Hair lately been clipped in the black like the young men's style. He has natural teeth, which are in good condition, one of incisors in left upper jaw is missing.

"Clothing: Body has a blue shirt with Big Yank trade mark, size 15. A light weight union suit with H. R. C. on it. (Different initials than those noted by McFarlane.) Pair of blue serge pants, tucked inside hip rubber boots. Latter are new and have white soles. Plain buckle belt, size 36.

"A $10 b'll and a $2 bill were found in fob pocket, also a cheap knife. Has two pair of socks on each foot, one of a lightweight blue and one a gray woolen pair.

'BODY TO WIDOW'

"Body had been in cold, deep water for some time. I estimated around two weeks. Later it was said to have been three or four days.

"This man was identified at Nickerson's undertaking rooms, on the 9th, by a man who said he was Capt. C. E. Johnson of the Gloucester fisherman Fannie B.

"Johnson said the man was Duncan Horne of Lunenburg, N. S., and was a member of his crew. That on the night of Aug. 4, a storm came up quickly. Horne was lashing a dory and the boat pitched and Horne and the dory went overboard and were lost.

"Cause of death given as drowning.

"The body was sent to Lunenburg to Horne's widow. The undertaker's bills were paid and everything seemed all right.

"There was a storm on the 4th as the captain said."

Now, that report discloses that although Dr. Curry's best opinion after viewing the body was that it had been in cold, deep water (which naturally would preserve it) for an estimated two weeks, he accepted the story of the fictitious Capt. Johnson that it had been in the water only four days.

The medical examiner notes that there was a storm on Aug. 4. Obviously that data was selected by "Capt. Johnson" because on that day there had been a storm and the choice of that date would afford substantiation for his fairy tale.

I cast no reflection upon Dr. Curry when I state that his own opinion of the date of death was nearer to being correct than that of the man whose story he accepted. My underworld informant, you recall, says 21 days elapsed between the murder of Haughn and the finding of his body.

So much for the report of the medical examiner. That he acted in good faith nobody questions.

'CAPTAIN' DEAD, TOO

Let us approach, now, the identification of Duncan Haughn, as Duncan Horne, at the undertaking parlor of Edward Nickerson in Bourne on Aug. 9, the day following discovery of the body.

This man, who identified the body, remember, was Willie Wagner, rum runner, now dead—Willie Wagner, alias Capt. C. E. Johnson, master, by his own tale, of a Gloucester fisherman (of which no record exists).

It seems a little strange, does it not, that the master of a fishing vessel should have heard so quickly of the finding of the body of the man lost overboard?

"Capt. Johnson" failed to tell the medical examiner and the undertaker where his ship was located. Dr. Curry was of the opinion that it was in the vicinity of Sagamore. Undertaker Nickerson did not gain that impression.

Wagner, alias Capt. Johnson, was driven to Nickerson's undertaking parlor in Bourne on August 9, the day following the discovery of the body, by Sam Tripp, a Bourne taximan who is, unfortunately, now deceased. Nickerson believes he arrived on the train.

Of his story to Nickerson, to whom he did not tell his name, or his different story to Haughn's relatives, of his identification and payment for shipping the body home and of Nickerson's memory of those incidents I shall write tomorrow.

(In tomorrow's editions The Masked Reporter, delving into the war for control of New England rackets, will continue his expose of the Duncan Haughn case, an alleged murder by the rum ring. The completed story is prepared and IT WILL BE PUBLISHED.)

Ex-Dry Agent Shot Down in Labor War

Chicago, May 28 (INS)—In what was regarded as the outgrowth of a labor war, Daniel M. Agoa, former prohibition agent, recently involved in a parole scandal, was probably fatally wounded today on a Loop street corner.

H. J. Weber, business agent for the Window Washers' Union, was charged with being Agoa's assailant. He said Agoa had threatened him.

CHILDREN DID NOT LIKE SOUP

But Mother Discovered Way to Overcome Their Objections

"Necessity is the mother of invention." A mother proved that recently, when her children said they didn't like the soup she had made of tomatoes, carrots, cabbage and peas. It needed something—and she knew it as well as the children. So after luncheon she tasted the soup again and realized then that the tomatoes had made it a little too tart.

Obviously sugar was needed. So a teaspoonful was added and the result was delicious. That evening when the soup was again served, the children, after one doubtful taste, ate it with keen relish.

"A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt" is being used more and more by cooks in seasoning soups, vegetables and meat dishes. The salt overcomes flatness but the sugar blends the flavors of all the ingredients into a delicious whole. Flavor and season with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

TRAFFIC BOARD CLEARS HURLEY OF CHARGE

Traffic Engineer John F. Hurley was exonerated today by the traffic commission of charges made by two electrical companies that he had favored a rival concern in the award of contracts for signal systems.

The contracts were awarded to the American Gas Accumulator Co of New Jersey. The General Electric Company and the Crouse-Hinies Company charged Hurley with unethical conduct in furnishing cost estimators with misleading information.

Commissioner of Public Works Joseph A. Rourke who declared last week he did not intend to be present at any more meetings of the committee, was absent today.

POLICE TO KEEP PUPILS AWAY

Newburyport, May 28—It's a curious state of affairs when school children must run a gauntlet of police to go to school.

That is exactly what is scheduled tomorrow as a result of the controversy between Andrew J "Hossy" Gillis, fiery mayor, and Starr M. King, superintendent of schools.

Hossy says, "I'm running this place."

King says, "Oh no, you're not."

To further his point Gillis ordered Acting City Marshal Walter E. Houghton today to assign police at all the schools to bar children who ought to attend.

He went further by visiting the grounds to tell the children not to attend tomorrow but go to the circus and "have a good time."

Then Supt King made the rounds of the schools today to tell children to attend. But it was Hossy that won the cheers.

Supt. King said the closing would cause him to violate a state law that requires a certain number of school days in the year.

He was reminded by Gillis the latter said that he could keep the school open to Dec 22 instead of June 20 if he liked but the offer was refused.

The city committee is split on the matter too. Frank W. Snow agreeing with Mayor Gillis and Frank Hoyt and Albert Russell siding with the superintendent.

Acting City Marshal Houghton said there was nothing for him to do but obey orders who he was asked his plans on the police order.

It looks like a big day tomorrow—what with a circus in town.

A FEW DAYS AGO WE GAVE IN THIS COLUMN A short story of the Vincent Club and before the story gets "cold" we want to answer the question, "Why the Junior League?" so that you may understand the distinction between these two organizations.

* * *

Being a member of a Junior League gives a girl social standing, assures personal character and denotes an intelligent interest in her community.

* * *

The association began in a very small way; ten wealthy young women met in New York in 1900 and discussed a purely economic problem their own happy, care-free lives compared with other drab, unhappy and hopeless lives, with the result that they resolved to devote part of their existence to making other people brighter and more useful to themselves. They banded together, the movement grew and today there are 114 Junior Leagues in America.

Bachrach photo

MRS. J. ROOSEVELT

* * *

The one thought of these ten women was Service—that was their aim, that would be their reward. And this spirit has been preserved. A member does not get elected without discussion, she must be a "nice girl" in the good, old-fashioned sense; she must realize that she was not sent into the world to be useless, just because she is of the wealthy class. She must do more her training for six months must encompass hours of hard work in the lecture-room, and in the field.

* * *

Four Phases of Activities

THE LEAGUERS ARE INTERESTED MAINLY IN FOUR phases of the life of their city; social, civic, cultural and philanthropic. It is an exclusive organization but not in the snobbish sense; they pick their members carefully, they want girls who have been well-educated, and who have been taught or who can learn to regard their wealth and positions as being in the nature of a trust.

* * *

THEY ARE EXPECTED TO spend not only their money, but their time and themselves on the League. If their duties interfere with their social life, they are expected to perform their tasks, whether in a hospital for ailing children, or a convalescent home for cripples, or an occupational therapy workshop first.

* * *

IN THIS DAY WHEN "SELF-expression" seems to be on every tongue with the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, the Leaguers have a higher ideal; they have learned that self-realization is finer. It may sound dull to the uninitiated the idea of sewing for the poor or visiting the sick sounds tame, but the members know what is at the back of it all. Pride of place is there and deep in their hearts that terribly old-fashioned phrase, Noblesse Oblige.

* * *

AND RIGHT HERE WE think is an excellent place to pay tribute to two Boston Junior Leaguers whom we happen to hear about from the boys they visit in one of the largest Boston hospitals, Mrs. James Roosevelt (Betsy Cushing) and Mrs. Frederick C. White, the Caroline Lawrences are more welcome than the flowers in May to the boys lying all day on the beach waiting for health to return.

Mrs. Frederick Whitesides

* * *

SINCE THEIR DEBUTANTE days those two girls have made regular calls with books and cheery smiles to this hospital and I am sure if they could hear the comments that go around the wards after they are gone, they would indeed feel well repaid. "She's a regular girl." "No high-hatting about that one, just a real friend," she brought me just the book I like." These all to my personal tributes.

* * *

A Veteran's Thanks

I CAN REMEMBER ONE DIS-tinguished veteran, a leader of detective service in Back Bay, mentioned one day to Mrs. Hollis Bunnell (another League visitor) that he had read a review on a book "Culture" and he asked her if she thought it would be any good. It was a weighty volume and serious Mrs. Hunnewell said she thought it would interest him and if possible she would get it for him.

* * *

HE CONFIDED IN ME THAT he did not think for a moment she would remember it, wouldn't have blamed her if she hadn't But did she forget? The very next day she made a special trip to the hospital and brought the book with her. She had gone to the Junior League library at Zero Marlboro st. and asked if she might take it to this soldier who had given his best once in the World War. I am sure she will be very happy to know how much pleasure she gave that day, just because she remembered her League vows of Service first. And that is "Why the Junior League?

* * *

TO GET BACK TO OUR "GOO FY gossip" we are noticing that Stuart Forbes is running Miriam Winslow. This is a disappointment to us; it was hoped that Miriam was really serious about her dancing and was going to be the most-famous exponent of Terpsichore in the world. Po Iowa's slippers are waiting. In case she changes her mind

THE NEW REVOLT: A FANTASY

By Gilbert Seldes

Eight hundred housewives in a New York village, having put themselves and their families on a diet of vegetables and fish, forced the butchers and poultry dealers of the community to reduce lamb chops from sixty cents a pound to thirty-eighty, steak from fifty-five cents to thirty, and so on down the line. Ours is not a country of direct action, but when we do act we are vigorous and effective.

* * *

A Fantasy of the Future

Given time, energy and a good writer as a collaborator, I shall work out a romance on this theme—that is a strike of the consumer—and I am sure the movies will like it. The idea (copyright) is that liquor and rackets are so highly organized now that they have to protect themselves against any change in public taste. In 1936 the kings of liquor have found that people are not drinking enough. They therefore bring down to individual cases the methods they used before. That is, they send a case of Scotch to you and to me and everyone, and we pay for it, or else——. At the same time they offer all of us protection. The system which worked with dry cleaners and vegetable dealers in 1928 can be perfectly extended to brokers (if they still have money), the owners of steel mills, department store heads, clothing manufacturers, and probably street cleaners. By 1937 we are all paying tribute to the racketeers.

* * *

Interlude of Fact

(We have to get our fantasies rapidly into print. As I write the report comes from Hollywood that the moving picture industry is the next open field for the racketeers. They will protect stars and directors and prevent unnamed enemies from burning down studios—all at a price. The alternative is thuggery, arson and murder.)

By 1938 the rulers of America have raised our compulsory ration of liquor to a case each fortnight, with a hundred bottles of beer every month, and they are protecting us for a meagre 10 per cent of our salaries or income. Every once in a while an independent operator tries to muscle in on the great industry, and bloody wars follow. But most of us have the intelligence to pay out tribute regularly to the dominating concern which was first in the field, and if we have to pay a secondary tribute we do it secretly. A moderate degree of prosperity has returned and we are, in fact, looking forward cheerfully to another depression to save us from our friends.

Then drunk with power, if not with liquor, the lords of America decide that our lives are worth more to us than we think, and they offer us universal protection and all the liquor we can drink at a flat rate of 25 per cent of our income.

* * *

Romance Provided

The trouble with the story so far is that it lacks personal interest. But, of course, we begin back in 1935 with a young man who is beaten up because he patronizes the wrong speakeasy, and two girls—one adores gangsters, and the other, by a coincidence, is the heroine. This young man will have to be called John Smith to protect him from being put on the spot, and it is he who about 1940 leads a general strike against booze and comes to its climax—which is where the movie made out of it will become a great spectacle—when the entire population of the United States masses itself in the Mississippi Valley, or perhaps on the plains of Nebraska or Kansas, and first smashing millions of bottles of pretty bad Scotch, advances in mass formation, a solid wall of millions of human beings, absolutely unarmed, against the machine guns and trench mortars and poison gas of the enemy.

* * *

Dulce et Decorum Est

The citizens fall by the hundred thousand—close-ups of agony and sacrificial ecstacy on the faces of the slain—but the onward march is not checked. The gunmen are totally unable to understand what is happening. They are accustomed to deal with cowards and, for once, they are face to face with courage. Their one chance for safety is to retreat, but they do not know what is happening to them. With the great human mass only ten feet away from them, they are still untouched. They cannot see what harm can come to them. They have all the guns and all the ammunition and all the airplanes.

What happens is that they are trampled to death. The men and women and children swarm over them as they might walk over an ant heap—or perhaps something less industrious and more verminous than ants. The racketeers are betrayed by their own stupidity.

* * *

A Complicated Ending

The great difficulty to be faced at the end of the story is how to work in the scene at Washington. For, of course, we must end in the capital of the country. Chicago and New York and the other centers of racketeering receive back the multitudes of their citizens with rejoicing, but in Washington work is to be done. A further difficulty is that this picture, which will cost between ten and twenty million dollars to make, will have to be financed, and the choice of backers will depend on the kind of happy ending we give it.

* * *

Take Your Choice

In brief, there are two possibilities. Our triumphant hero and his trusty lieutenants, having buried the slain citizens in a great memorial to freedom, are all elected to Congress and repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, and the picture ends with a romantic shot of hundreds of transatlantic liners, with the sun going down behind them, plowing their way toward these shores with good French wines. That is one way, but, obviously, it makes it impossible for the Anti-Saloon League to finance the picture.

The other way is for the President of the United States to announce that the great battle of Kansas has now sanctified with sufficient blood the noble experiment of prohibition, and now the country is saved. Whereupon the hundred million survivors go back to the battlefield, bury the dead gangsters with full military honors and erect a white marble shaft, on which they inscribe the words, borrowed from the Pantheon: "A grateful nation to its illustrious dead." Then the hundred million commit suicide simultaneously—and even cheerfully.

The Hunters

By Bruno Lessing

Paris.

One thing I can't understand. Why this steady procession of American editors, publishers and moving picture producers to Europe, in search of material? They come over on every steamer. They land in London. Paris or Berlin. They read all the new books and short stories and plays and they are swamped with suggestions and contributions.

Shubert, Al Woods and Ray Goetz were in Paris at the same time. Knopf, the publisher, just went back. Macmillan, Dutton, Appleton, Putnam and Scribner maintain a steady influx of shock troops. Saul Flaum of the Cosmopolitan Corporation hustled all over Europe for material. The Laskys and the Lasmmles and the Warners and the Mayers are mentioned every week as sponsors for Tom, Dick, or Harry who has come to Europe as a scenario racketeer.

* * *

No Talent Here?

What's the big idea? As they say in Germany, was ist los mit der United States?

Is the American literary, dramatic and artistic soil arid? Many critics think it is. But that is only a belief and not conviction. I'd like to be convinced and know the reason why.

We did pretty well with Sinclair Lewis. And, in spite of what Sinclair Lewis says, Long fellow was a fine poet. Can't we develop more Lewises and Longfellows? Can't this formidable procession of talent diggers dig up good material in the eastern, western, northern or southern parts of the United States? Instead of this fierce competition in exploiting European genius.

I wish some kindly soul would give me the low down on this problem. I really don't understand it. Of course I realize that there is a higher and finer culture in European countries than in America. But the mainspring of creative impulse does not lie in culture. It lies in youth and struggle and attrition and suffering and in the spirit of the day. And God knows that the United States has an abundance of those raw materials.

* * *

Want It Ready Made

Those publishers and producers are pretty smart gazabos. They find that they get better ready made literary and dramatic suits over here and they're not wasting time on made-to-order suits in the United States.

But isn't it a bit of a short-sighted policy? Wouldn't it be worth while for this stream of bosses to invade the vast territory of the U. S. A. and broadcast encouragement? I think "encouragement" is the word I was groping for.

To cut it short: Genius needs encouragement. There's more encouragement in personal contact than in a world of correspondence. And, while I don't know anything about it, I've got a hunch that, pretty soon, a great wad of genius will spring up in the U. S. A. And the publisher or producer who gets on board first will clean up.

The Critics

By Gilbert W. Gabriel

I SUGGEST (in a howsoever cracked and timid voice) that the critics are always seated in the wrong places. We ought not be put so far down front. We ought not be down in the parquet at all. The gallery would be a good place for us. Maybe this sounds as though I'm suffering from summer masochism. Not at all. I should enjoy the last row of the top gallery as much as most actors would enjoy my sitting even two rows further back than that.

* * *

Sitting at Their Feet

THE parquet in the American playhouse is always the most expensive, extensive, influential and important portion of the auditorium. And the parquet is always so placed that at least three-quarters of its inhabitants are seated below the actors' feet.

There are several living interpreters of the drama at whose feet it is a privilege to sit. But at, not under them. The greatest of actors are not gods. This humble looking-up, which the parquet sitters must practice, results in nothing but a crick in the neck and an inferiority complex. Both of those ailments, though admittedly minor, are hard on an audience's tempers. If we've got to star gaze, they've got to guarantee us great stars.

* * *

Sitting Downstairs

THANKS to some petty tradition, critics—the very least of critics—always insist, and always succeed, in sitting downstairs. If anybody is so gauche as to offer us the first row of the balcony, where we'd be on excellent terms of equality with the actors' lips and mouths, we issue challenges, ultimatums, bulls and bow wows. I have seen the most gentle of us go suddenly purple and explosive at the kindly suggestion that we sit upstairs and see things all the better. A balcony seat to a critic is as a police ad among to La Belle Livingstone.

It is foolish of us. Whenever I go back to see a show a second time, sans starch or official solemnity, I always try for the balcony. This time I don't have to sit astride the saxophone, if it is a musical comedy, or in among the hobnailed boots, if it is a crime play, and don't have to spend the first ten minutes of every actors' entrance counting the prickles of his beard beneath his juvenile make-up.

* * *

Actors Spoil Play

WHEN you sit so far down front, you can scarce see the play for the actors. And you really never see the actors proper, either. You have to specialize in actors' lower halves. That is why critics grow so fast into realists.

Think of a lifetime spent on a level with Miss Pennington's knees and Mr. Hampden's ankles. Sometimes we're just Peeping Toms, sometimes we can sublimate ourselves into cynics and yet, vanity of vanities, we squabble for those worst possible seats in AA, B or C. We're a touchy lot of sufferers.

On one or two grim occasions I've had to take a back seat. It's a way the disgruntled producer will sometimes use to punish a too impertinent typewriter. It has always given me quite a shock, then, to discover that actors are not necessarily strange creatures with mile-high legs, faces as far away as the rosy summit of Mt. Blanc, and voices swimming in some upper ether aeons overhead.

* * *

Actors Dislike Critics

ACTORS tell me the dislike of critics down front is mutual. An actor can see only a few rows across the blinding hedge of the footlights. The reflection gives him a few upturned, yellowed faces. What faces? Invariably the sad pans of us, oh, so professional critics. I can't blame them for wishing we were 17 rows further back, en bloc. I can't but sympathize with the whim they always confess to afterwards, to come walking out into the center of the audience on the white steps of our bald spots.

Our present flock are slow, silent smilers at best. The actors naturally dislike us as nightly next door neighbors. They don't see why we have to be death heads as well as dead heads. To their light glazed eyes we appear as a visitation of seven year locusts or mother-in-law or, worst of all, hard-boiled drama critics. They can't act.

LARGE CITIZEN ARMY IS URGED BY HEARST

Columbus, O., May 28 (INS)—In a message read here before more than 3000 R. O. T. C. cadets of Ohio State University, William Randolph Hearst stressed the importance of maintenance of a competent citizen soldiery as a basis for American national defense and the instruction of the youth of the land in the rudiments of military training with that end in view.

MUST DEFEND NATION

Members of the team were decorated [illegible] university was presented with perpetual silver cup, and beautiful silver shield commemorative of victory in the rifle shoot conducted by the war department and sponsored by Mr. Hearst.

Presentation of the trophies was made by Maj.-Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, commander Fifth Corps Area, U. S. Army.

Mr. Hearst [illegible] many dignitaries including President George W. Rightmire of Ohio [illegible]

"A nation like the United States subjected to the envy and jealousy of a hostile and insufficiently civilized world, should be able to defend itself against some outbreak of this latent hostility into attack. A Democratic nation does not want a large standing army and the only effective alternative is a competitive citizen soldiery.

TRAINING FOR YOUNG

"Military training for the young men of the nation in schools and colleges was favored by the founders of the Republic, but unfortunately this plan is not in general operation. The next best plan for national defense is to instruct the youth of the land by her means in the rudiments of military training.

"The object of the annual rifle [illegible] is to make skilled marksmen of as many young Americans as possible and so contribute to this important manner toward the defense of the country through an efficient citizen soldiery.

"The trophy to be [illegible] awarded hereafter, not merely to the winners of an ordinary contest at skill, but to the young Americans who have most effectively cultivated their mental and physical attitude toward the possible defense of their country in time of danger.

MAKE GOOD CITIZENS

"It is being presented not merely to good marksmen, but to good citizens, to the young men whose love of country leads them to prepare for patriotic duty.

"None of all the people in America wants war, but somebody must have the vision to see that war may be forced upon us, and the wisdom to prepare for that emergency."

In making the presentation, Gen. [illegible] said:

"As commander of the Fifth Corps area I wish to congratulate the Ohio State University and its rifle team in winning this beautiful trophy presented by Mr. Hearst. Mr. Hearst is to be congratulated in the encouragement he is granting the rifle competition in the colleges and universities of the country. He is performing an outstanding public service."

President Rightmire accepted with these words:

"Ohio State University is highly gratified to be the recipient of the Hearst rifle trophy. The university appreciates the fine American spirit of Mr. Hearst in setting up this trophy, and all units of R. O. T. C. join us in wishing him well and extend to him our compliments."

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

The great Lord Tennyson in a beautiful poem refers to a woman's Adam's Apple as "The warm white apple of her throat." Consider your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple—That is your larynx—your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Protect the delicate tissues within your throat. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants! Reach for a LUCKY instead. Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette which brings you the added benefit of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. It is this exclusive process that expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

TEACHERS LOSING THEIR ONLY INCENTIVE: THAT GUARANTEE OF JOB

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

To me the big news of last week was—not the disorders in Spain, not the Pope's encyclical, or President Farrell's lambasting of the steel magnates for wage-cutting—but the laconic story that the city of Fall River was dismissing more than 150 public school teachers in order to save money. I imagine the news came as a shock, not only to me, but to many others as well.

We have become familiar enough in the past few years with the often repeated complaints that the costs of our American schools are rising too rapidly and out of all proportion. Luxurious high schools fitted out with every gadget the modern educator can imagine, multiplication of administrative offices, elaboration of the curriculum, special teachers and special classes for every subject under the sun, all these objects of criticism we are thoroughly familiar with. The schools are being urged to economize, to return to the simplicities of older days. Wherever I go I meet people who seem to feel that we are not getting our full value out of the enormous sums we spend for public education.

* * *

Schools Held Sacred

Yet with most of us it is only a theory and not a condition. That is why the news from Fall River comes as a challenge. It seems to deny one of our oldest and most cherished beliefs, that whatever else is cut the schools must not suffer, that no matter how hard times are the motto of the schools must be "business as usual."

A year or two ago we saw Chicago moving heaven and earth to pay its school teachers out of an empty treasury. But there was no indication that the teaching force was to be decimated merely because the municipal housekeeping had been extravagant. True, Chicago is a great, rich city, while Fall River is a small, poor city dependent on a declining industry. All the same, plenty of people are asking themselves whether it is absolutely necessary that the schools share so heavily in the inevitable budget balancing.

Massachusetts has plenty of school teachers, as it is, who cannot find jobs. Obviously we have been letting our boys and girls in and out of the normal schools too easily, making it too easy to enter what should be one of the most exclusive of professions. In the future we shall not have so many unemployed and unemployable teachers. Higher entrance and graduation standards will take care of that.

* * *

Are Not Incompetent

Meanwhile, what of the more than hundred and fifty experienced and competent men and women thrown out virtually without notice, at a time of year when it is not going to be easy to find places for next year? Particularly at a time when wise folks are digging desperately on to their jobs, if they are so lucky as to have jobs. No, it is not going to be easy.

These people are not being discharged for incompetence. There is no question of that. Whole departments are being discontinued, whole buildings are being closed. The teachers are paying, not for their own deficiencies, but for the incompetence and extravagance of their elected city governors.

Men and women go into business and industry with their eyes open, expecting lay-offs, shut-downs and dismissals as normal hazards in a system which is still chaotic, unorganized and accidental. They cheerfully accept these chances because to the competent and fortunate person business offers great rewards

* * *

What's the Teacher's Future?

Men and women go into public school teaching—why? Certainly not with any expectation of large returns in wages. They know pretty well what is the most they will ever hope to get. And it isn't very much. But two things they do count on, continuity and security of employment. And to thousands those words mean the most they expect and hope from life.

That is the implicit understanding between the teachers and the public body. The city or state expects faithfulness, long service at low wage, and—Lord knows!—it gets its money's worth. The teacher expects that the public good will be administered with sufficient competence, efficiency and honesty to insure—barring one's own incompetence or failure in character—that security of tenure which alone can guarantee good professional work. The city of Fall River has broken its implicit contract with the people.

But that brings us back to the fact that perhaps the city has been spending more money on its schools than it honestly could afford. That is not impossible. We are proud of our schools. We want the best for our children. We want fine buildings, splendid equipment, highly trained teachers, and all the latest desirable things in new departments, activities and subject matter. Some of these are absolutely fundamental. Some of them, especially in this period of great experimentation and elaboration in our school theories, are, as yet, luxuries. They would be nice to have, but we can do without them.

* * *

Smileless Schoolma'ams Then

It is a commonplace in American public education that the public school teacher has very little to say about the system of which he or she is a part. There are supervisors, superintendents, and school committees to settle policies. Very often it is neither wise nor healthy for the teacher to criticize and suggest, however long experienced and competent she may be. Often the teachers know better than the authorities when experiments are failures, departments are unnecessary, money is being wasted, apparatus isn't worth the money appropriated, and the like. But under our public school system there is nothing for the teacher to do but smile and keep still.

In the future, perhaps, they will keep still without smiling, knowing that bad management and extravagance may be endangering their very jobs. Which isn't going to help morale.

Towns and municipalities in difficulties seem to be getting more numerous than formerly. If every town that goes into a receivership starts by whittling down the school system, one of Massachusetts's proudest distinctions is going to be harder to brag about. The way to avoid such a disgrace is not merely better municipal housekeeping all round, but a careful watch on the growing tendency towards the three ring circus in every school. To avoid that, and the subsequent humiliating return to the one ring show, we can do no better than to give the teachers themselves a voice in the program. Even if for no other reason than their own security, we can trust them to tell us the truth.

MODERN XANTIPPE -:- She Wears 'Em! -:- DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

Socrates lived between the years 468-399 B. C. Most of us, unless we dig back into our school-day history, think of but two things when we read "Socrates" on a page. We remember the hemlock—the Athenian instrument of death—that he drank in his cell. And we remember Xantippe, Xantippe the shrew, the over-bearing, the positive, his ill-humored wife.

Socrates, a man of engaging manner and some little humor, was married twice. But even Diogenes Laertius, who gives him two, tells us only of this outstanding lady, Xantippe. Of the other we know nothing—perhaps because she was a gentle soul who never stamped her little sandal on the sands of time!

In vulgar parlance of another day—Xantippe wore the pants! Xantippe went forth in the trousies! And Socrates said he had married her from a belief that if he were able to bear with her temper and her bossy ways which gave his patience grand exercise, there could be nothing under heaven and its glittering stars that he could not support! That was the year four hundred years before Christ.. This is nineteen hundred and thirty-one years after the great teacher.

And the girls have gone Xantippe, for the dance, the street, the factory, even schools if it can be "putten over," the beach, the home, everywhere but beddy-bye where they used to be nowhere but.

Gone trousies, all but the temper, we hope, of the militant Xantippe. We hope these exaggerated sailor pantes do not work upon our Fair that way—rendering them bossy and uppity with the rest of the trousered population who had them first.

They are going to be useful—I can see that. But I don't find myself believing that they will ever be BEAUTIFUL on the fairest figured demoiselle that ever walked. There's something about them—'specially when they go walking off—!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

BANKER TRIED IN CHILD CASE

Spectators and newspapermen were ordered out of the courtroom today as Henry J. Smith, Jr., of Parker rd., Wellesley, department head of a Boston bank, went on trial for alleged misbehavior toward the nine-year-old daughter of a neighbor.

Before the trial started the child was examined in the judges' lobby by Dr. James A. Donohue, prominent Boston surgeon, for the defense, and Dr. Hamilton of Wellesley for the complainant.

The little girl's mother took the stand as the first witness. The father, who brought the complaint against Smith, was also in court to testify, as was Police Chief William Fleming of Wellesley.

Associate Justice Saunders of the Franklin District Court sat on the bench in place of the regular judge. Atty. Frederick G. Katzman, prosecutor in the Sacco-Vanzetti trial, is attorney for the accused, and Dr. Donahue sat beside him within the bar enclosure.

HOUSE PASSES OLD AGE TAX

The House today, after wrangling three weeks, passed a bill to finance old age assistance by an increase in the inheritance taxes and a $1 boost in the poll tax for men.

The measure was passed on a voice vote without debate and now goes to the Senate where further wrestling with the problem is expected.

The steps it passed in the House is the engrossment stage and should it be passed by the Senate without change, it would have to be returned to the lower branch for the formality of enactment.

Under the bill as passed today the state pays one-third of old age assistance, the cities and towns two-thirds.

The inheritance taxes will be increased from a minimum of one per cent and a maximum of 12 per cent to a minimum of one and a half and maximum of 16 per cent. This is expected to bring in $500,000 while the additional $1 poll tax is counted on for $1,125,000.

Jennifer Makes a Conquest of Gratton as They Gaze From the New Building Top

By Fannie Hurst

(Copyright, 1931, by Fannie Hurst)

(This fourteen story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

THE OCCASION marched to address by Rarick, who, by the time the pistachio ice cream arrived knew that this was to be one of the excessive nervous times he would be obliged to read his few remarks.

He did so after coffee, the decorus phrases, the mock humilities that had been written for him either by his secretary or by the wife of his secretary, dropped heavily on the assemblage.

"... share with you—proudest moment of my life—generous public—lifetime ambition—service of the people—humble servant—owe everything to generosity of those who have encouraged applause—temple of music dedicated to people (applause)—from the people back to the people—your generous co-operation my humble efforts—fine spirit of cooperation in my organization (applause)—thanks due to officials—employes (applause)—I wish I had the ability to express dedicated to people—dedicated to people—"

"Awful! Awful! He said cooperation eleven times."

Damon's knee so gently pressing hers! It made it easier, after the polite applause had died down, to look up from her plate.

Thank God, chairs were scraping back. Another horror of an occasion over. Curious, that the figure of Rarick could be so consistently a depressant. Never knew it to fail.

"You mustn't mind it, Jenny."

"I do mind, terribly. Why does he attempt it? Oh, Jennifer, there you are! Wasn't it ghastly?"

"Not at all, mother. Father is my idea of a bat in the pulpit, or is it belfry? I love the bat, if only I didn't have such a horror of getting him caught in my hair.

DAILY TRUE STORY
THE PHONE CALL

TOMMY WOULD MARRY HER IN SPITE OF THREATS

THERE WERE a lot of stories floating around about how Flats Gordon died. None of them was true because only a few people know the truth and they weren't talking. I knew—never mind how—and this is what really happened.

Maybe it was beyond the law. Maybe the man who killed Flats was just as bad as he was. I don't know. All I know is that if I had been in Jake Holway's place I'd have done the same thing. Maybe you would have, too.

Flats was killed because he murdered Jake's brother. There wasn't any excuse for that; there wasn't any reason for it. If Flats had taken a shot at Jake it would have been all right because Jake was in the racket and he expected to be shot at. It was all part of the game and a man had to take chances.

But Tommy Holway was different. He was Jake's younger brother and he didn't run with his mob. Tommy never took a dishonest dollar in his life, from bootlegging or anything else. And he didn't fight with Jake about it, either. If Jake wanted to, that was Jake's business. As for Tommy, he was going to law school and selling insurance on the side and trying to grow up into what is called a decent citizen. There are lots of brothers like that.

There was a girl; somehow there always is a girl. She was a pretty little thing. Her name was Helen and Tommy wanted to marry her as soon as he was able to support a wife. Flats wanted her too but he didn't want to marry her.

Helen was afraid of Flats but Tommy wasn't. When Flats sent him word to keep away from her he just laughed. Maybe he should have told Jake. That sort of thing was in Jake's territory and Jake would have known what to do about it. But Tommy didn't—and he was murdered.

Not killed—murdered. There's a difference. Flats and a couple of his gorillas waited for Tommy one evening near Helen's home and when he showed up they began crowding him. Then Flats shot him and planted a gun on his body.

Flat Was Tried
But Came Off Clear

They tried Flats, of course, but they didn't get anywhere with it. Flats pleaded self-defense — said Tommy drew a gun on him. That was a laugh, of course. But it got by. Because Tommy was Jake's brother and everybody knew Jake was a racketeer. What more natural than that his brother should carry a gun and attempt to use it? And, then, just to make sure Flats' mob got to a couple of the jurors. They used to do those things then. Anyway, Flats was acquitted.

He went to cover right away as he had beaten the law but he knew he still had Jake to reckon with. He was right about that, too. If it was the last thing he did in this world Jake intended to kill Flats. Because he sort of blamed himself for Tommy's death, his reputation and one thing and another.

Flats hid out in a house in the suburbs and it took Jake a week to locate him. They watched the house for another week but Flats never showed so much as his nose. He was waiting for one of his gang to get Jake and then he'd come out.

That's the way it was when one day the telephone in the house where Flats was hiding went dead. Flats needed that phone. It was his one link with the outside. He was cursing and swearing about it when the doorbell rang and a repairman from the Telephone Company arrived.

Phone Man Let In
They Watched Him Closely

The phone wires were strung on poles out in that neighborhood and the repairman explained they had been doing some work on them and had cut the phone out of commission. He looked all right so the goodmans who were with Flats let him in. But he didn't see Flats and they watched him closely as he examined the phone, explained that the receiver carbon was cracked and replaced the instrument with a new one.

Flats made a few calls over the phone, found that it was all right and then forgot about it.

Well, that night a couple of men wearing linemen's kits climbed a pole in the rear of the house where Flats was hiding. They began working on the telephone high tension and electric light wires that were strung on the pole, for two lines crossed at this point.

That is, one of them did the work. The other just clung to the pole and held a flashlight for his companion to see by. They wore rubber gloves and it took them about 20 minutes.

The phone rang in the house where Flats was hiding. The man who was calling asked for Flats and explained that he had some important information about Jake to give him. Flats came to the phone.

Flats said "Hello." A voice said "Flats?" and Flats said "Yeah."

Killed by Phone
Flats Got 3000 Volts

Then the voice said "Listen, you ——— This is Jake Holway. I'm on a pole on the back of your house and I tapped the phone wire. I swore that you were going to burn for killing Tommy and now I am going to do it to you. Here it is!"

Flats had the receiver in one hand and the transmitter in the other. There wasn't any insulation in either of them. That's why the fake repair man had put them in.

Flats didn't have time to drop the phone before it hit him. Because just as Jake finished speaking the man clinging to the pole beside him dropped the exposed phone wire over a high tension wire and sent 3000 volts into Flats.

He might just as well have been in the electric chair. Anyway, that's how he died.

500 PUPILS IMPERILLED IN RICKETY BUILDING

RICE SCHOOL IN SOUTH END FIRE TRAP

New Plumbing, Boilers and Fire Escapes Sorely Needed in Old Structure

The Rice public school at Dartmouth and Appleton sts., South End, is a firetrap and should be replaced at once by a modern, fireproof building.

This is the conclusion of the Boston Evening American's representative who made an examination of the premises. It is also the conclusion of school and fire officials.

In its survey in behalf of more and better schools for the children of this city the Boston Evening American found much room for improvement in the Rice school, which was built 63 years ago and has been in constant use since.

180 IN "FIRETRAP"

It is a three story brick veneer building of second class construction. It has no fire escapes, although 240 children are taught daily on the third floor from which two narrow wooden stairs lead to the second floor. These stairs are of all wood construction and are in a sagging condition in places. They need bracing if the school is to continue to be used.

New radiators in all the rooms are needed as those in use are inadequate, in fact an entire new heating plant is one of the imperative needs.

An entire new plumbing system is another of the crying needs as the old latrine system, condemned years ago by health authorities, is still in use there.

Two boilers, which have been in use 30 years, should be replaced at once as they are too old to adequately heat the building.

Five hundred children occupy the Rice school and at least once a week all are gathered together in the assembly hall on the third floor. Two regular classes of 50 children each are taught daily on that floor as well as 40 children in two sewing classes.

NO FIRE ESCAPES

According to the master of the school, the fire chief of the district considers the third floor of the building a fire hazard because of the two narrow wooden stairways that descend to the second floor as well as the fact that the building has no fire escapes.

Being of a second-class construction, the floors are held up by wooden beams and they are in such condition now that a single man can make the floors of the hallways on the second floor sway by jumping up and down on his toes.

Another fault found was the presence of 10 tons of ashes in the basement near the boilers. The custodian said the ashes had not been removed in a year despite several requests on his part to the proper school authorities.

With all the unemployed men walking the streets of Boston the Boston Evening American believes it would be a good idea to engage a few of them on such necessary work as this.

No Fire Escapes—Wooden Stairway—Just Few of Faults of Rice School

There are many things wrong at the old Rice school, Appleton and Dartmouth sts. There is no fire escape. The building is very old. Wooden stairways are a menace to the safety of the children. In the basement of the school are 10 tons of ashes. They have been piled up in the building since last May. Nothing has been done to remove them. Five hundred pupils attend classes in this school. Pardon Granted to Payroll Robber

USE GLASSES? HERE'S STYLE

The well-dressed woman should have three pairs of eye-glasses and the well-dressed man at least two pairs.

With style in glasses becoming more important every year, this is the decree of the stylists, according to Harry B. Shimwell of Brookline, secretary-treasurer of the Guild of Prescription Opticians of America, in convention at the Hotel Statler.

"The well-dressed woman should have glasses for street wear, for sports and for dress," he said.

"For street wear style calls for spectacles with rims, or nose glasses. For sports wear, spectacles with plain or engraved rims. And for dress, glasses with fine rims of white gold or white gold and platinum, perhaps embellished with diamonds and sapphires.

"Men should have glasses for business and for sports. Large-rimmed eyewears are no longer important and are used only for shopping."

SEVEN GUILTY IN RUM CASE

Seven men who hired space in a warehouse in George st., Roxbury, for a liquor cache today pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

In federal court they were given suspended prison sentences.

Ilyman Stone of Morton st., Dorchester, who Assistant United States Attorney Elihu D. Stone (no relation), said was the "brains of the outfit," was fined $2500 and put on probation for two years. Unless he pays the fine in a reasonable time he will have to serve two years.

Max Stone, his brother, living in Morton st., was given a year and a day, but sentence was suspended and he was put on probation for a year.

Eli Davis of Arbutus st., Dorchester; Max Feinstein, Highland st., Revere; David Feingstein, Hamilton st., Everett, and George Moore, Marathon st., Arlington, were each given a suspended sentence of a year and a day.

CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Bayer Aspirin is ready with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin
Genuine

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

STATE OFFICIAL URGES PARLEY ON DANGER

Property Valued at Millions in Area Not Properly Protected, Is Claim

A large area of Somerville, including property valued at $11,000,000, is a fire menace and inadequately protected against fire, State Marshal John W Reth notified Mayor John J. Murphy today.

The property is that on the land of the Boston & Maine railroad bounded by the Mystic River, Middlesex ave., Mystic ave. and Boston & Maine yard No. 21

Situated within this area, with an approximate valuation of $11,000,000 or $12,000,000, are the Ford Motor Co. plant, the First National Stores supply house, the Vacuum Co., users of large quantities of hydrocyanic acid, the Boston & Maine locomotive repair plant and the Concrete Block Co. plant, the buildings or which are all of wood and frame construction, Marshall Reth said

Marshall Reth disclosed that he made a survey of the area with Fire Chief Cribby of Somerville. The lives and the means of livelihood of a great number of employes demand immediate action to correct the lack of fire protection, he told Mayor Murphy and the Somerville Board of Aldermen

He recommended that the mayor call a conference of the Boston & Maine Railroad, the fire department and owners of property in the area "in the interests of mutual benefit and mutual preservation" and asked that he be notified of the results of this conference.

SALVAGE SMOKE COLUMN ROLLS HIGH

Blazing transformers sent a scare through Brighton early today and scores of anxious inquiries to newspaper offices and fire headquarters as telephone company workers burned the discarded equipment to salvage copper. The heavy smoke column from the blazing pile could be seen for more than five miles. (Staff photo.)

SCHOOL DAMAGE LAID TO YOUTHS

Wholesale thievery and numerous acts of vandalism in Somerville schools were charged in a report sent to the Somerville school committee today.

It placed blame for the vandalism on the evening educational and recreational committee, "which has allowed young hoodlums to run riot in the schools after hours."

The report was the result of an investigation asked by Dr. Francis J. Mahoney, former chairman of the school committee, last March. At that time Dr. Mahoney criticized patrons of evening recreational centers and told the committee that each school should make a report on damage done

Everett W. Ireland, superintendent of schools, asked John H. Kelly, building commissioner, to investigate and today the report substantiating Dr. Mahoney's charges resulted.

At the Bingham school on Lowell st, many small thefts were reported as well as many acts of destruction. The loss of pens and pencils and the breaking of a bust of Lincoln was reported included among the damage.

The school committee will start an investigation into recreational centers maintained at the schools this week

SCIENCE PLANT FOR WELLESLEY

Miss Ellen F. Pendleton, president of Wellesley College, today announced that a new science building is to be erected on Norumbega Hill. It will house classes in chemistry, physics and geology.

President Pendleton's announcement was made in Memorial Chapel during the last formal services of the seniors following the last academic procession of the school year.

Names of the students chosen for a year's study in the Sorbonne, Paris, at the expense of Wellesley College were announced

They are Francis Sharof, New London, Ct.; Gertrude Lakson, Brookline; Virginia Maxwell, Cincinnati; Olive Warden, Andover; Rebecca Shaw, Portland, Me.; Dorothy Field, Phillips, Me.; Eleanor Herbert, Fall River, and Elizabeth Meader, Greenville, R. I. All are sophomores and will spend their entire junior year at the Sorbonne.

SAILS FOR BARBADOS HOME

Dinner Tonight in New Fire Station

Braintree's new central fire and police station at Washington and Union sts., considered one of the finest in New England will be formally delivered to town officials by the building committee at a dinner in the new structure at 6:30 this evening

About 125 have been invited to be guests of the committee. Speakers will include Chairman Horace R. Drinkwater, Asst. Dist.-Atty. William P. Kelley, Secretary Charles O. Miller, Chairman Edward Avery of the selectmen, Dist.-Atty. Winfield M. Wilbar, Sen. John D. Mackay and Rep. Horace T Cahill.

SALVAGE FIRE CAUSES SCARE

Fifty blazing transformers—fired for salvage—sent a heavy, black pall of smoke over Brighton today and caused anxious inquiries at fire headquarters and newspaper offices.

They were set afire in the yard of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., Market st., Brighton, to burn away the wax and tar compound of which they are made so that valuable copper wire might be saved.

The column of smoke could be seen for more than five miles and gave the impression that a huge conflagration was in progress.

27,000 WOMEN ANTI-DRYS HERE

The Massachusetts branch of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform now numbers 27,000 members, more than four times the membership a year ago, it was announced today as the second anniversary of the organization was observed in 33 states and the District of Columbia.

"The growth of our branch during the past two years is sufficient evidence, I think, to warrant prediction that our membership a year from today will exceed 500,000," said Mrs. Robert W. Lovett.

"A year ago in Massachusetts we had 6000 members. Today we have 27,000."

The birthday was observed here by launching of summer plans which call for activities on the north and south shores, on Cape Cod and in the Berkshires, by such prominent women as Mrs. Charles Hogan, Mrs. H. Addington Bruce, Mrs. William B. Burke, Mrs. James H. Vahey, Mrs. Frank C. Scanlan, Mrs. Paul Swift, Mrs. Joseph Alexander McCord, Mrs. John W Myers, Mrs. J. Hasbrouck LeFevere, Mrs. Colin Macdonald and others.

MUSIC PROBLEM ACUTE

Radio Men and Song Writers Worried

Broadcasters May Yet Handle Publishing of Radio Melody

Tremendous consumption of modern melodies, together with the fact that these same ditties don't last long as good program material, presents a problem of sizeable proportion. Not only are the song publishers getting gray, but the big studios as well are concerned no little. Tin Pan Alley, or song writers row, in New York keeps on grinding out tunes at a lively clip—but also at starvation prices. Consequently that infernal wail is sniffing and smacking his red lips at song shop doorsteps. What to do? Well, the NBC and CBS may solve the whole business by setting sail into the rough waters of ditty creation, each on their own.

Music producing departments appeal to station executives as the solution. In such a manner, development of inspirational compositions will perhaps be more likely. Available information at this writing certainly indicates that within two years or less, melody factories shall be housed within the walls of our big broadcasters. If (or when, to make it a prediction) this comes to pass, ear-cuppers please remember where they first read it.

Modest "Skeets" Miller

Since awards are made and bestowed for the best books, plays and even for the best diction demonstrated by announcers, why not the same for meritorious technical work? Following the engineering feat accomplished during recent air fleet maneuvers in New York, a token of appreciation was talked of for Burke Miller, NBC chief technician. He himself spiked it, modest guy that he is. A medal to him would be just something to cut up and divide with his helpers. Does this world need more such fellows?

About this advertising blah-blah some people squawk so loudly over, it might not be a bad idea to remember that England taxes those who own sets. We can be thankful to somebody or other for not being among the 1433 Britishers hailed to court this week for failure to have a receiving license. Wonder if they go around tagging the "bally old speakahs over theah—aye?"

* * *

Morton Downey is sidetracking "Wabash Moon" in favor of "Carolina Moon," no doubt because his new and very rich sponsors make their "ciggies" in Carolina. Well Mort, no more cookies and pie from the good folks of Indiana, but then Southern fried chicken is hotsy totsy eating ol' boy.

Secret Ambitions

An odd "sitcheeashun" comes to light in the life ambitions of certain well-known radio folk . . . David Ross wants to be a poet. . . Peter Biljo wants to run a store . . . Freddie Rich pines to manage box fighters . . . Ben Alley longs to be an opera star . . . Ruth Etting yearns to design apparel . . . but why go on. Maybe they're all kidding, which is good fun, so let's guess what Graham McNamee wants to be.

Superlative humor is aired by the Three Doctors, who sing a new one called "I'd Give a Thousand Dollars to be a Millionaire." These boys are heard at 3:30 p. m. (WAAB) on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Lend them an ear. N. F. T.

SPORTS EVENTS will be tumbling out of the loud speakers with great frequency in the next few weeks. Among the scheduled b'dcasts are the English Derby, the Indianapolis auto race, the Belmont stakes, the British open golf finals, the U. S. golf open tournament and the I. C. 4-A championships.

This last, annual track and field events involving the outstanding collegiate athletes of the country, will be described by Ted Husing tomorrow and Saturday. WNAC carries tomorrow from 3 to 5:15 and on Saturday WAAB will be b'dcast be finals starting at 3:30.

COMING OUT OF THE ETHER . . . A $5000 a week offer may coax Gloria Swanson to the radio. Just two years ago the actress was glad to sing into a mike for a considerable less amount . . . The power of coin is also exemplified by the Rudy Vallee hegira, WEEI at 8 this eve. Some time ago one of Rudy's hours came to a premature end due to mechanical difficulties. NBC refunded the money for that program and with it the famous bought up Rudy for 52 weeks as a guest artist turn. She will be heard in some new numbers tonight . . . The Radio Roundup, WAAB at 11.30 this eve., lists Gypsy Markoff, accordionist, a newcomer to the Kerman, crooner and Bill Elliot.

"MEET THE ARTIST," the new feature starting on WAAB at 5:45 today, promises to make old timers out of conedoos. Such favorite as Guy Lombardo, Julia Sanderson, Frank Crumit, Ann Leaf, Ted Husing, Mr. Frank Knight & practically every CBS employee, will appear before the mike to tell entertainingly all about their past, present and future. Morton Downey starts the series off today and Bob Caplinger, CBS writer will be on hand asking end. Peg La Centra, vocal blues singer, supports all for 90 lbs. to N. Y. in a few weeks to appear as guest artist with the Whiteman. And if the magnate like her, you'll be hearing regularly another Boston girl on the network. . . Lois Bennett, soprano, is guest artist on the WBZA feature at 7:30 tonight . . . "Music in the Air" and "Keys to Happiness, NBC programs, have been received so well by the East that NBC will start a similar series on the Pacific Coast. M G M

ROMANTIC!
Does a girl pick a boy to read poems at her? At least this type is very easy to manage.
ROUGH!
FICKLE!
RICH, but OLD!
Being an old man's darling has its benefits but youthful arms are much more welcome!
SO INNOCENT—
yet she had the pick of the town
Let one gossip start the ball a-rolling and even the sweetest girl in town begins to look like a sinner? Here's a joyful entertainment that's packed with situations you'll scream at! You'll be in on the secret while the folks in the picture are trying to guess! That's why you'll laugh louder than you've laughed in months!
You've never seen a funnier movie—

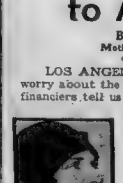
TRIBUTE PAID WINSTON Hundreds Honor RKO Manager

Lowell Sherman Obtains Long Term Contract to Act and Direct

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, May 28 — Well, Lowell Sherman needn't worry about the old prowling wolf and the lean, dark days that financiers tell us are to remain with us for some time. William Le Baron has just signed him on a long term contract to continue acting and directing.



Louella O. Parsons

"I have great plans for Lowell," said Mr. Le Baron, "and I am sure you will be glad to know we are continuing our friendly relations."

Bill Le Baron is just back from New York and he must have been in a contract-signing mood, for the ink was no more than dry on the Sherman contract when he and Herbert, Brenon got together and made arrangements for a continuation of their association. Ivan Lebedeff, too, has been given a new long term contract.

Sally O'Neil Will Head Cast

THE HAPPIEST girl in Hollywood today is Sally O'Neil. She feels her troubles are all in the past with the good luck that seems to be coming her way. The Fox Company has just signed her to play the lead in "The Brat," created on the stage by Maude Fulton, clever screen writer, who also authored the play. Fox made a wise choice when they selected Sally. We've missed her piquant personality lately. Albert Gran and J. Farrell MacDonald will also be in the cast of "The Brat."

* * *

IF YOU SAW Louis John Bartels in "The Show-Off," you know what comedy there will be in a series of short subjects called "The Traveling Man," starring Mr. Bartels. RKO-Pathe has engaged "Mr. Show-Off" for a series dealing with the incidents in a traveling man's life. Can't you just see Mr. Bartels as a drummer? He should be very amusing. Roscoe Arbuckle, who knows his comedy and knows it well, will direct.

* * *

OH DEAR, I do hope they are not going to talk stardom for George E. Stone. He is one of the finest character actors on the screen and now we hear he is to have the lead in "The Monkey Talks," for the Fox company. The lead is great if it ends there, but we just couldn't bear to have George E. taken out of the character parts he plays so well. There are plenty of stars, but few character actors with Mr. Stone's ability. Seymour Felix will in all likelihood direct "The Monkey Talks."

* * *

WE ARE interested to hear at Leatrice Joy will soon be back. Leatrice has had an unusually successful vaudeville tour and she returns to Hollywood ready for the screen. A friend of mine who saw her in Boston said she was more attractive than she has ever been in her life. Everyone will be glad to have Leatrice hogs again. Betty Compson, as all the world knows, is free-lancing, but it is interesting that her first free-lancing engagement is back at the home studio. She plays one of the leads in "Strange Women," at Radio Pictures, with Claudia Dell and Raife Harold also in important roles.

SNAPSHOTS OF Hollywood collected at random: MARION DAVIES' friends gathering at the station to bid her bon voyage. CONSTANCE TALMADGE, TOWNSEND NETCHER, LENORE BUSHMAN and HARRY CROCKER in MARION'S party. All of them sail June 6 on the Europa for a pleasant summer abroad. ROSCOE ARBUCKLE being introduced at George Olsen's night club and taking a bow. BOBBY JONES getting a million dollars' worth of applause when JOE LEWIS introduced him. Golf is popular, so is BOBBY JONES. REX BELL leaving for Nevada for a few days. LUCIEN HUBBARD receiving many wires of congratulations on his new job as supervisor. CHARLES MURRAY and his lovely wife, RAE, celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary. CHARLIE hoping that they will celebrate their 50th. All their friends hoping so too. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Slavers Film at Majestic Tomorrow

"Fighting the Slavers," a dramatic motion picture which exposes the social evils which threaten the lives and safety of young girls, comes to the Majestic tomorrow evening. Based on authentic statistics gathered in every metropolis of Europe and America, "Fighting the Slavers" discloses the activities of the underworld. It exposes the means by which victims are trapped and condemned to their fate. The picture was filmed in Berlin, Constantinople, Vienna, Athens and other capitals.

The story concerns a young Berlin dancer, a girl of fine family, who finds herself pursued by an international criminal, whose millions are made at the cost of human souls. "Fighting the Slavers" was made with the cooperation of police authorities in cities where conditions were under official investigation.

During the limited engagement at the Majestic the film will be shown at continuous performances from noon until 11 p. m.

Leaders in Many Fields Attend Testimonial to Theatrical Chieftain

SHOW BUSINESS in New England last night celebrated the return to the field of Charles L. Winston, New England manager for RKO, who stood in the place of honor at a testimonial dinner at the Copley-Plaza.

Charles Winston

The return of Winston, who has been a convalescent in the South for some weeks, was the occasion for a demonstration from people in public life. Every notable actor in Boston, every man and woman who has worked for "Charlie" Winston — everyone who is outside the world of the footlights, has known Winston as a friend—all the people who know Winston as a campaigner—they were all there to welcome the man back to the helm of RKO's New England ship.

There were few speeches, and those few were short and to the point. No beating about the bush; no grandiloquence; just the bald assertions of friends and rivals in business alike, that show business in New England was back to normal. Winston was back; now everything would be all right.

There were 17 acts of vaudeville. That means that 17 "singles" or "doubles" or "acts" gave up the sleep that is all too scarce in these days of five-shows-a-day to cavort on the improvised stage for Charlie Winston's homecoming party.

Acting Mayor Joseph McGrath represented the city of Boston, in the absence of Mayor James M. Curley. Charlie Winston's friend

Marry-Go-Round

IN THE LOVE CAMPAIGN— AIM AT MAN'S VANITY

By HELEN ROWLAND

HELEN ROWLAND

A man used to start his campaign by begging for a woman's kisses as a privilege and a boon. Now he begins his "selling talk" by telling her what a privilege and a boon he is going to bestow upon her, and what a thrill she will be missing if she overlooks the opportunity.

What the average girl seems to be looking for is a masterful, high-handed lover, who can be turned into a meek, bill-paying husband by the simple twist of a marriage ceremony.

She may calmly watch her husband's bald spot increasing year by year; but to a sentimental woman it is a heart-breaking thing to see her favorite screen-lover growing gradually stout and middle-aged.

"Are You Ready for Marriage?" is the title of a new book. READY? Why, the average girl is so "ready," these go-getting days, that it almost stops a man's heart-action.

It is said that a toothache will drive an elephant crazy. But that's nothing. A man's toothache will sometimes drive the whole family crazy.

A woman may buy beauty by the box and charm by the falcon; but common sense, personality and a favorable disposition are dealt out by the grace to those whom the high gods love.

A man just loves to preach economy, and then sit around with a cocktail in one hand and a dollar cigar in the other, and watch his wife practice it.

What's the difference between "slavery" and "freedom"? Exactly six weeks and ten minutes. In Reno.

Tragedies Hit Families in Waves

By WINIFRED BLACK

THE OTHER day a woman out in Denver got up in the morning, set her modest breakfast table in the modest comfort of her modestly attractive little home and sat down to drink a cheerful cup of coffee—alone.

Winifred Black

Her husband was away on business and she was getting ready to give him a nice fried chicken and hot biscuits for dinner when he came home.

The bell rang.

"Can he have come so soon?" thought the woman.

But, no, it was the postman.

He brought the woman a letter from her sister who lived a thousand miles away in the old home town where the two sisters were born.

The letter was bordered with black—and the woman hated to open it.

When she did open it she found that her sister had written to tell her that two of her brothers were found dead and would be buried on the time she read the letter.

One of them died of influenza, and one was killed in an automobile accident when he was hurrying over a "skiddy" road to see his brother.

Just as the woman sank into a chair to read the letter over again, word for word, and be sure there was no mistake, there was another ring at the door.

This time it was a messenger boy with a telegram in his hand.

The telegram said that the woman's husband had been killed in a railroad accident.

Have you ever heard of such a series of miseries before?

I have—many and many a time.

Have you ever known a family to live in peace and comfort together for twenty years, and then suddenly the lightning began to strike?

The father lost his money, the mother lost her health, one of the girls ran away with a good-for-nothing Good Looker, and one died of heart disease.

All within one short year.

This sort of thing happens over and over again, have you never observed it?

No, I do not believe in "curses" that come home to roost, or in Vengeful Furies, but I wonder if the radio can't explain some of strange things to us blind, deaf, groping mortals.

When you want a certain program you must turn the dial and get on the right wave length. No matter how hard you try, or how intently you listen, you won't hear that particular song unless you are tuned in on a particular wave length

Are there conceivably waves of experience — waves of success, waves of happiness and waves of sorrow and tragedy?

COURT TAN sun, Spring girl of 1931, be gone! Away with his blinding rays, but ward off his blistering kisses. Get tan slowly, by brief exposure at first and by using cold cream generously, before going out of doors and after coming in. Excessive sunburn is inflammation; when blisters form, it can lead to infection. Continued burning destroys the delicate fabric of the skin, which grows coarse of texture, becomes subject to blackheads and other ills of the complexion.

LORRIMER was not the boy Delight had known, eager, ardent, restless; yet it was that boy, come to manhood, his eagerness conscious of its goals, his ardor graver, deeper; his recklessness gone, perhaps forever. This was the man she did not know, a man she would like to know, a man upon whom she had a certain claim.

She did not hear Mary Lou's reply. Her ears were dinned with the rush of blood, pumping furiously through her heart. She took a cautious step forward, skirted the hedge to a place where the close-woven branches were thinner, pushed them gently aside with her hands and tried to look through. Succeeding, she saw Mary Lou's face, small, rather piteous in expression. She saw Lorrimer in profile

His head grown much handsomer with the years, she thought, watching him, feeling old, forgotten memories sweeping back on her with a tremendous force. His head grown amazingly attractive. There was a strength about him . . .

He was not for her.

No, he belonged to this girl, who had redeemed him from his own particular hell, whose small cool hands and wise friendly eyes had led him back to earth and sanity. He belonged to her who loved him, and who was ready to make a sacrifice for him, the extent of which he would never guess; who had deceived him so that he might reach happiness, and who was ready to give him up so that happiness would be founded on something which she fancied real.

But it would not be real.

Loving Mary Lou Thurston as she was, he could never come to love Delight Harford as she had become. Never.

Delight went back to the little path in the woods, hesitated there. She'd return to town, and wait. When Mary Lou came to her, whatever had been decided, she would tell her she had changed her mind. She would tell her a number of things; and then she would leave New York without Lorrimer's ever having known she had been there. Mary Lou could do as she thought best about what, eventually, she would have to tell him when the real truth had to be told.

Comfort, ease, luxury! She turned her back on them all, a rather gallant woman, a woman who knew her own limitations, a woman who realized her own soul and of what she was capable. That she was not capable of being to this man what Mary Lou was to him, she was fully and bitterly aware.

She turned and walked away. She was blinded by tears. She put up her hand to brush them away. She caught her ridiculous spike-heeled shoe on a hidden, wandering root and fell to the ground, heavily, twisting her ankle painfully, and lay there a moment, wondering frantically what she would do. She got to her hands and knees and managed to stand upright, but the hurt ankle betrayed her and flung her again. She sat holding it in her hands, sobbing under her breath, regarding the damage to her stocking with the practical regret of the woman who has few stockings and cannot afford to tear them. How would she get back to the station, she thought, dully. And she couldn't go an tomorrow night; she couldn't dance; she couldn't even walk.

She was dizzy with pain and sick with it. She had eaten nothing for breakfast; she had been out until almost dawn. Lack of food and lack of sleep, her long unaccustomed walk in the sun, the agony of her rapidly swelling ankle told on her now. She gave a short sob, which was half a groan, and fainted.

"What was that?" asked Lorrimer sharply.

"I don't know. It sounded," said Mary Lou, "like someone falling."

But Mary Lou's big police dog puppy, which had followed them into the boxwood garden, made no reply, being very busy on his own concerns, by now, a good quarter of a mile away.

"Funny," said Lorrimer. "Sometimes we get a violation of tramps in spring and fall if she walk-ate is left open. Suppose I go and see."

He started to his feet and Mary Lou with him.

"No, I'm as curious as you are," she said, trying to lengthen her steps to his long stride. "Curiosity killed a cat, you know. I've often wondered what it was she was so anxious to know!"

"The sound came from this direction," said Lorrimer, whose hearing was acute and accurate.

But keen as were his eyes and hearing, they were not as alert as Mary Lou's.

Tomorrow—Lorrimer comes face to face with the woman he loved in wartime and thinks he still loves.

Consult Your Doctor Before the Hay Fever Season

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

MANY PERSONS dread the summer months. They are the victims of hay fever.

Hay fever, or summer catarrh, originally received its name by reason of the extreme sensitivity of certain individuals to the pollen of hay and other grasses. These individuals, in addition to this peculiarly sensitivity, may be sensitive to other plant, animal and bacterial proteins.

Dr. Copeland

There is a similarity between this disease and the symptoms met by persons who are unpleasantly sensitive to certain foods. Foods, such as eggs, shellfish, strawberries and tomatoes, may produce severe disturbances in susceptible individuals

Hay fever and other associated diseases are found, at times, to run in families. It is believed by some authorities to be a sort of hereditary affliction

When exposed to the offending plant, there is at once a sensation of heat and fullness in the eyes. There are redness of the eyebalis and a discharge of tears. Smarting and itching of the eye are soon converted into inflammation, with free discharge of mucus and pus.

Irritation of the nose produces sneezing. This becomes extremely violent. There is general discomfort and the patient is susceptible indeed.

Within the past decade great advances have been made in the treatment and cure of hay fever and similar diseases. I refer to the "desensitization tests," which some day I shall undertake to describe in detail. Following these tests, an inoculation of serum is made

This treatment demands a long and tedious procedure but in many instances is most effective It requires a good deal of patience on your part, but I recommend it as well worth your time and trouble.

There are occasional cases of hay fever and asthma that do not respond to treatment. For these relief can only be accomplished by change in climate and altitude. Needless to say, it is important to keep away from the particular pollen that precipitates the attacks.

If you are a sufferer from asthma, hay fever or rose fever the time to consult your physician is before the annual season arrives. By a few simple tests he may determine your sensitivity and immediately give you the necessary injections. If successful, your Summer months will be passed in ease and comfort

Pajamas for Yachting Popular

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, May 28—Add to new outdoor sports the game of wearing pajamas for golf, walking or tennis. For we now have sports pajamas even if the models already shown do look very decorative. Perhaps the new models are called sports pajamas to distinguish them from the indoor variety, for it is rather difficult to think of participating in a tennis or golf game wearing such a costume.

But for the afternoons on the terrace of some delightful country house one could think of nothing nicer and more appropriate to the surroundings. Yachting pajamas have been very popular and so perhaps some of the prettiest models are developing land legs. For wear on any vessel afloat yachting pajamas are ideal and they have a natty nautical look to them that is simply grand

Over the short sleeves is worn a handkerchief scarf of the pique trimmed with bands of the striped crepe. The pajamas are extremely wide below the knee

She Wants to Be Popular at Dances

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I very much need your advice I am 17, weigh a little over a hundred pounds, wear octagon shaped glasses, and am told I am an attractive girl. (Sounds impossible!) I am exceedingly neat in my dress, and wear expensive, up-to-the-minute clothes

Now here is the trouble. When I go to a dance or some social affair, I am very seldom asked for a dance. I know almost all the latest steps, so my dancing is not to blame. I am not "stuck-up" for I have a smile and a "hello" for everyone I know. I never refuse a dance, unless I have to. Now the trouble is that boys resent thin girls, and also "glasses." That seems to be my trouble. I may be thin, but I have plenty of "pep." I am not afraid to talk, for I have quite a wide knowledge of intellectual subjects. But who talks that way? Mother enjoys buying me pretty things, so I do not lack in clothes.

Please try to suggest some way of improving my "technique"

BACKWARD

Dear Backward—When you tell me you wear octagon shaped glasses, it explains much of the wallflower business. They always seem frenkish and exaggerated to me. Select some other style, perhaps a rimless pincenez, if they're becoming to you. Have some friend in whose judgment you have confidence go along when you select them

Hardly Recognizes Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man about a year ago and he tells me he loves me and speaks about when "we are married." We do not see much of each other and when we do he tells me of his wild parties and dances. His actions puzzle me. If I going down the street and he sees the other side, he hardly recognizes me. Do you think he's just "kidding me?" I try to forget him but it's impossible. H.

Dear H: Summon your pride. A young man who tells you he loves you, and in the next breath talks of wild parties and then to cap the climax hardly speaks when he sees you on the street, isn't worth thinking about. Look around you! Find someone else more worthy of your affection

NEW ENGLAND COTTON WEEK PROMISING

By FRANK H. MELOON

National Cotton Week, June 1-6, in which New England mills naturally will take a leading part will see raw cotton around the lowest levels attained in 16 years. From cotton bought at recent levels, low-priced finished goods can be produced at prices extremely tempting to consumers. In the big Boston stores today, ladies tell me, finished dresses can be bought more cheaply than they can be made at home. The economical madam and miss goes shopping today instead of, as formerly, sewing at home.

Russell T. Fisher

* * *

From the mills' standpoint, the National Cotton Week now at hand comes with the brightest outlook in more than a decade. Secretary Russell T. Fisher, of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, with headquarters in the Boston Chamber of Commerce Building, anticipates a very active week. Although it is not generally known, Mr. Fisher, since taking office, has gathered at the Federal st. offices what is believed to be the world's largest library solely devoted to cotton textiles. It has many consultants.

* * *

Wall St.'s confident assertion that the "big Boston bear" has been buying American Can and other leaders on the way down for ten or more days interested many people. No great obstacles to such accumulation have appeared over the period mentioned.

* * *

President James A. Farrell of the United States Steel Corp. said recently that America must find a foreign market for 10 per cent of their production in order to build up a well-rounded business. How much better it would be for all concerned if a market could be developed for three times as much as we now send abroad. Our factories could easily produce it and our banks finance it. The prosperity of foreign countries plays an important part in the individual welfare of American corporations and workmen.

* * *

Fallacy of the idea that fare-cutting is a necessarily feasible remedy for railroad troubles everywhere is again forcibly proven. There is a vast difference between ordinary fare slashing and the intelligent excursion program followed, for example, by the Boston & Maine. The Interstate Commerce Commission as well as the St. Louis & San Francisco evidently had the wrong idea in allowing the railroad to reduce coach fares to two cents a mile. The I. C. C. now kindly consents to let the 'Frisco go back to the standard scale of 3.6 cts., effective July 1. Some think immediate effectiveness of the restoration would have been sounder economics.

* * *

A cable from Moscow today says leaders of Soviet Russia have been confronted with evidence of several hitches in their industrial program. We do not have to go abroad to find hitches in industrial programs.

* * *

New historic low price of 8½ cents a pound for copper appears to have been established by what some might call secret price cutting. It took a canvass by authorities of the Metal & Mineral Markets to reveal that the red metal had been sold at this new bottom some days after such selling had taken place.

* * *

Some authorities on the copper industry tell us it may be a year and a half before stores of the red metal are reduced to what is considered normal. If Canadian and African mines co-operate in curtailment programs, as they should, conditions should right themselves sooner, especially with a reasonable pickup in demand taking place.

* * *

The wage cuts in Boston-controlled and other copper mines lack significance as we see them. These mines have always followed the policy of raising or lowering wages in accord with the price of the metal. We believe Anaconda and others have had contracts with their workers calling for a sliding scale of wages based on metal price changes.

Baldwin Locomotive, one of the "Four Horsemen" of the so-called Coolidge bull market, today omitted its common dividend. It has been a long while, however, since Baldwin has been entitled from the standpoint of activity to be ranked among the market leaders.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Relief from professional short selling today gave the market its first real breathing spell in the last three days. Many of the professionals were reported on the buying side of the market, with short covering the objective in most of the market leaders.

Warner Bonds Seen as Offering Clue

A 7 point jump in the convertible bonds of Warner Bros was taken today as the cue to improving financial conditions within the company and the stock soon moved up around 2 points.

Radio Keith Up on Merger Rumor

Steel at Usual New Daily Low

Central Recedes on Poor Statement

New York Central started today 2 points lower on the official income statement for April, which showed net return of $2,801,600, against $5,489,000 in the same period last year. Losses of a point or more were recorded in other well known rails.

Socony Sells at New Low for Year

Gas Bonds Prompt Sale Is Significant

Prompt sale of the Consolidated Gas bond offerings reflects the enormous volume of idle funds now available. The flow into prime securities as indebtedness continues to be paid off should be steady and should pave the way for better financial conditions in turn for better business.

McKeesport Tin Plate "Extra"

Declaration of the usual extra dividend by McKeesport Tin Plate emphasizes the position of tinplate manufacturers, which reflects the demand for containers from canmakers and other users. A number of the leading steel companies have reported that tinplate operations have been satisfactory right along. Had other branches of the steel industry held up half as well on sales as on prices earnings of the big steel companies for the second quarter would be much larger than those to be reported during July.

Excellent Buying in American Can

Excellent buying has been reported in American Can on a scale for some days. Not only has the demand come from interests close to the company but several important traders are said to have been picking up the stock as a logical leader during a good technical recovery movement.

Profits Hold Well for Year to Date

There have been many statements in bearish quarters regarding the affairs of American Can since the beginning of the year, especially with regard to sales and earnings. In semi-official quarters it is reiterated that sales since January 1 have been only moderately under those for the same period of 1930, and because of the many economies the net profits have been only slightly below those of last year. This is in sharp contrast with the bearish propaganda which has been circulated during selling waves in the issue.

U. S. Steel Many Times a Laggard

United States Steel may be a laggard when the general market shows a tendency to move ahead. Many times in the past this pivotal and popular stock has been among the last to suffer during a decline and also was behind the remainder of the market when an upward movement started. Despite this action it is well known that Steel always has been watched by outsiders and the public demand in the general market was at its best when this issue was moving ahead.

Loew's Leader in Amusement Field

Loew's has been the leader in the amusement field. While other shares in this group have been encountering heavy liquidation because of adverse earnings, etc., this stock has been able to hold above its 1929 panic low, despite the fact that some selling came into the stock by interests identified with the industry who disposed of Loew's to protect speculative holdings in others which declined much more abruptly. In the past few days there has been evidence of quiet accumulation of the stock by interests well informed on the company's affairs.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Five hundred miles of fog was fought by three freighters which came into the upper harbor this morning. The German motor tanker Max Albrecht, from Hamburg and Rotterdam, began pumping 1300 tons of palm kernel oil into tank cars at Pier 2, East Boston. She also has palm kernel oil and sun flower seed oil for New Orleans. This is the first visit of the tanker to Boston. Capt Gustav Buettemeyer is accompanied by his wife.

The British steamer Bristol City, is discharging a full cargo of China clay, about 2205 tons in weight. Capt. D. N. Roce is also accompanied by his wife.

With a cargo of general merchandise, the United States Shipping Board steamer Clairton, operated by the Oriole Line from Manchester and Liverpool, is discharging cargo at the Army Base.

LEADERS END DAY, MOSTLY WITH GAINS

New York, May 28—Leading issues on the New York Stock Exchange ended today's session mostly 1 to 3 points higher.

SOME SELLING SEEN

The gains were mixed with a few losses of 1 to 4, as fresh selling appeared at the finish.

With the replies to the stock exchange questionnaire on short positions due today, bears were inclined to withdraw, but hangover liquidation was still in evidence. The day's turnover was around 2,100,000 shares.

Shares closing 1 to 3 points higher, and in the main a point or so under the day's highest, included American Telephone, American Can, Atchison, American Tobacco "B," Consolidated Gas, Lambert, Westinghouse Electric and Public Service of N. J.

RAILS IN DECLINE

Lehman Corp. dropped 4 points, in what was said to be primarily the liquidation of a single holding.

Opinions as to the extent of the short interest are still highly mixed. If the stock exchange discovers a greatly over-extended short interest, Wall Street will look for a sharp rebound. The results of the questionnaire presumably will not be made public for some time, if at all, and its showing probably will be apparently only in the action of the market.

Several brokers are warning their customers to beware of the short side, pointing out that within 10 weeks the autumn stimulus to business will be felt and that the stock market usually discounts such seasonal movements in trade some weeks in advance.

ANOTHER DEFICIT

I. G., Boston—Would it be advisable to dispose of Reo Motor at a loss? Is there any chance for a recovery in the near future?

Ans.—Any possible advance in the market price of Reo Motor could scarcely be traced to recent earnings reports. Though the company is one of the oldest motor car manufacturers in the country and dividends, with many extras, have been paid from 1925, the stock is a speculation. In the first three months of this year the company showed net loss of $130,823, compared with loss of $175,436 in similar period of 1930. A loss of $1,989,188, or deficit of 99 cents a share in full year of 1930, contrasted with net income of $1,0[illegible], or [illegible] cents a share, in 1929.

LATEST EARNINGS

F. N., Cambridge—On the advice of a friend I bought [illegible] shares of Trico Products at 54. What are the latest earnings?

Ans.—For the three months ended March 31, 1930 Trico Products earned $1.37 a share, against dividends of $1.25 a share for that period. In similar period of 1930 earnings were $1.53 a share. In 1930 earnings of $5.04 a share, contrasted with $6.66 in 1929. An initial quarterly dividend of 62½ cents a share paid January 1928 has since been continued.

EARNINGS POOR

A. C., Lowell—What do you think of a purchase of Kelly Springfield common?

Ans.—Kelly-Springfield common is a mere gamble, on which no dividends have been paid since first quarter of 1921. With exception of 1927, operations for several years have resulted in losses. Net loss in 1930 amounted to $3,[illegible],000 or deficit of $4.13 a share on the common stock, compared with loss of $1,346,000 in 1929. We advise investors, no speculators.

NO INCOME

E. T., Quincy—Your comments on securities appeal to me. What do you think of a purchase of Radio-Keith-Orpheum "A"?

Ans.—Radio-Keith-Orpheum "A" is a speculation. It has never paid a dividend. Earnings for 1930 were $1.45 a share, against 93 cents in 1929. We can tell you what to buy for income if you are interested. Speculative advice is out of our line.

SCHAAF'S FIRST RING FOE WAS PRESENT PILOT

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Life in th' Game Yet. Schaaf's Feat Helps. Brings Boxing Back. | Ernie and Shamus. Match 'Em Again. Bout Is Hot Now.

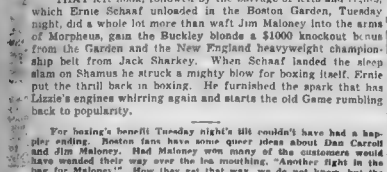
BOSTON LIKED ERNIE'S BED TIME STORY

To Two Chair Johnny's Dutchman, is owed a vote of thanks. We hope that blonde haired Ernie, keeps up his S. O. pranks. For when on Jim Maloney, he flailed that fateful whack, He knocked poor Shamus cuckoo, but Boxing he brought back!

THAT left hook, followed by the barrage of lefts and rights, which Ernie Schaaf unloaded in the Boston Garden, Tuesday night, did a whole lot more than waft Jim Maloney into the arms of Morpheus, gain the Buckley blonde a $1000 knockout bonus from the Garden and the New England heavyweight championship belt from Jack Sharkey. When Schaaf landed the sleep slam on Shamus he struck a mighty blow for boxing itself. Ernie put the thrill back in boxing. He furnished the spark that has Lizzie's engines whirring again and starts the old Game rumbling back to popularity.

For boxing's benefit Tuesday night's ilk couldn't have had a happier ending. Boston fans have some queer ideas about Dan Carroll and Jim Maloney. Had Maloney won many of the customers would have wended their way over the bea mouthing, "Another fight in the bag for Maloney!" How they get that way, we do not know, but the fact remains they are that way. The smashing, decisive defeat of Maloney did much to restore public confidence in the gentle pastime of scrambling ears.

EVERY mother's son, who was at the ringside Tuesday night will be back at the ring again whenever the right brand of fistic fireworks is promised. Billy Ames, the Garden matchmaker, has been making the right kind of matches. If Bill keeps it up and the fighters fight, the customers will do the rest. Old Dr. Schaaf has handed the Sick Man of Sport the right brand of pills. The old Game now is bowling for its sats in 'the good old-fashioned way. There was nothing "sick" about boxing Tuesday night No Siree-e! Not by the proverbial jugfull!



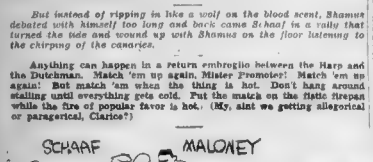
That bed time story Ernie told Shamus has put the Wrentham Walloper right in the forefront of the heavyweight array. Cinderella Schaaf hopping into the front row of the heavyweight chorus over night. All the promoters are making goo goo eyes. The stage-door Johnnies are hanging around with bouquets. Bill Carey and Jimmy Johnston, the deadly New York promotorial rivals—heh, heh—both are striving to get fair Ernie to show his fistic charms on a Gotham stage. Chicago and Philadelphia also are giving Buckley's blonde the "Ah There! Beautiful One!"

But if "Two Chair Johnny" Buckley and Desperate Dan Carroll have an ounce of gray matter under their new straw Katys, they'll hie themselves to a matchmaker's office, park their shillelahs and hard looks at the door, get together around the table again and affix their John Hancocks to another contract binding Ernie and Shamus to a return tete-a-tete. Shakespeare never repeated, but some good things do, and should do. Match Shamus and Ernie again Mister Matchmaker, and you'll have to build a new ball park big enough to let in the angry mob.

SHAMUS deserves another b'eting from the Dutchman. While the shindy lasted last Tuesday night, it was "anybody's fight." A couple of drags on the old cheroot before Ernie put the lights out on Maloney, Shamus himself landed a man-sized right that made the lamps flicker a bit on Ernie. The blonde's knees shimmied and he blinked in a way that showed if Maloney had followed up quick enough it might have been a German funeral instead of an Irish wake.

But instead of ripping in like a wolf on the blood scent, Shamus debated with himself too long and back came Schaaf in a rally that turned the tide and wound up with Shamus on the floor listening to the chirping of the canaries.

Anything can happen in a return embroglio between the Harp and the Dutchman. Match 'em up again, Mister Promoter! Match 'em up again! But match 'em when the thing is hot. Don't hang around stalling until everything gets cold. Put the match on the fistic firepan while the fire of popular favor is hot. (My, aint we getting allegorical or paragerical, Clarice?)



WAS the triumph of Schaaf's only a flash in the pan? Or has Ernie really found himself fistically? We incline to the latter view. Anyway, the stalwart young man from Wrentham did something we never before saw him do—warm up quickly in the punishing and come zipping in without holding any debates with himself. Heretofore Ernie always was a mechanical fighter. Like Cassius, he thought too much. Action is what the ring demands, not thought. Ernie gave us action, Tuesday night. If he'll only continue to furnish action, start in punching at the opening bell and keep on punching, he is likely to punch himself right to the top of the fistic peaks, a la Jack Dempsey.

A cream puff boxer or a slow-slugging plodder never gets anywhere in the prize ring. Hurricane Ernie never was anything but a slow-slugging plodder. Last Tuesday night he showed the flashes of real fistic brilliance. Hope he soon has the punchin' habit.

While handing Mister Schaaf bouquets for putting new life in the game, don't forget that Shamus Maloney himself had considerable to do with it. Although it turned out that Jim is of the type more or less made to order for Schaaf, the fact remains that if Maloney had gone into his shell and refused to swap punches it probably would have cost the customers the big thrill.

SCHAAF will show at his best against a slugger. A clever boxer is likely to tie Ernie up and make him look slow. Perhaps Ernie's new found "pep" will enable him to show at his best against a boxer of the Tommy Loughran type, but we doubt if another meeting between Schaaf and Loughran would uncover any more interesting milling than occurred in the other encounters between them.

It takes a two-handed slugger like Jack Dempsey, or a masterly boxer with a sharp punch like Sharkey, to break through or batter down a defense like Tommy Loughran's. Barrie Jenkins considers the punch with which Sharkey made Loughran query the referee, "Where am I at?" a fluke punch. But if Sharkey and Loughran meet again, as they are likely to do before the season is over, the figure is not an likely to stop the debonair Philadelphian as quickly as he did the first time. In pugilistic parlance:

If Tommy again takes on Squire Jack,
'Twill be an awful blunder.
For Jack has Tommy's number!

W. G. A. CHAMPIONSHIP SEMI-FINAL RESULTS

Mrs. C. F. Eaton, Wellesley, defeated Miss Ruth Batchelder, Brae Burn, 5 and 4.

By BILL GRIMES

Miss Rosamond Vahey of Belmont Spring and Mrs. C. F. Eaton of Wellesley reached the finals of the annual W. G. A. championships by defeating Miss Martha Brewer of Weston and Miss Ruth Batchelder of Brae Burn, respectively, in the semi-finals played at Brae Burn today.

Miss Vahey came through with a 4 and 2 victory over Miss Brewer, while Mrs. C. F. Eaton scored a 5 and 4 win over Miss Ruth Batchelder.

Miss Vahey played the best round she has turned in during the championship. She was out in 41 and when the match ended at the 16th, she was 4-5 for an 84.

Until Mrs Eaton got a little careless and let down at the seventh hole, she was on her way to the best outward round of the championship, but a 6—4—7 finish gave her a 44 to the turn.

Although the Vahey-Brewer match was keenly contested from the start, Miss Eaton was always safely up on Miss Batchelder once the match got will underway

Miss Eaton ran up a four-hole lead during the first seven holes and although she had a seven at both the ninth and tenth Miss Batchelder was unable to take advantage of these slips and did not get better than a five.

Miss Vahey and Mrs Eaton will play the final tomorrow.

Miss Vahey Plays Steady Golf

Miss Vahey was home nicely with her second going to the first hole while Miss Brewer, after slicing a tee shot into the rough, played a safety shot short of the brook, taking three to get home

After Miss Vahey had putted dead for a four, Miss Brewer made a great try for half, just missing holing out a 12-footer.

They both had putts for three at the second hole, which was halved with par fours.

Neither was home at the third again they both had fives.

They were both down the middle of the fairway with two woods and about even on the fifth, but Miss Vahey's approach was strong, running over the green. Miss Brewer, on the other hand, chipped to within 10 feet of the cup, from where she droppped the putt for a bride.

Miss Brewer was home with her fourth shot at the long fifth with Miss Vahey on the left hand edge from where the latter chipped in for a five and a win as Miss Brewer missed her putt.

They were both on the short sixth green from the tee and halved this hole with fours.

Miss Brewer got a fine half at the seventh after pushing her second shot into the woods. She pitched out through a small opening onto the green and was down in two putts for a half in five.

They both three-putted the eighth green for fours and halved the ninth when Miss Vahey needed three to get down to the edge of the green with her opponent on the back edge, having flubbed her second shots.

Miss Brewer Squares Match at 10th Hole

Miss Brewer soared the match at the tenth with a par five and then paced up an opportunity to take the lead for the first time at the eleventh when she missed a three-foot putt.

At the short twelfth, Miss Vahey ran in a ten-footer for a birdie two and was again one up.

From the fifteenth tee Miss Vahey drive caught the rough and she made a fine recovery shot landing on the green while Miss Brewer after an excellent drive was just short in two and needed three to get down, losing the hole to a par four.

At the 16th, Miss Vahey hit a beautiful tee shot to the top of the hill and was just short of the green with an iron, but Miss Brewer's second shot a spoon, caught the trap and she was just out with her third

Miss Vahey chipped dead, but having two for a win, took them for a five, winning the match 4 and 2

Miss Vahey's card—

Mrs. Eaton Opens Match With a Win

Mrs. Eaton started off with a win at the first hole, where Miss Batchelder missed her second shot and then three-putted the green for a six. Mrs. Eaton was on the edge of the green with her second, chipped down and dropped her putt for a four.

Although Mrs. Eaton was trapped with her second shot, she got a half at the second hole for Miss Batchelder needed three to get down from the edge of the green.

Miss Batchelder was just short of the third green in two, while Mrs. Eaton missed her second shot and needed three to get home. Miss Batchelder chipped up close and dropped her putt for a four after Mrs. Eaton had missed, squaring the match.

At the long fourth, Mrs Eaton was on in three but Miss Batchelder pulled her second shot into the rough among the trees, and after playing out safe, put her fouth shot over the green and conceded the hole to her opponent.

A beautiful chip shot gave Mrs. Eaton a win at the fifth, where they were both short with their third, but Mrs. Eaton's approach hit the pin and dropped a foot away from the cup. Miss Batchelder made a great try for a half but missed, losing to a five.

They both pulled their tee shots at the sixth, Mrs. Eaton landing in the trap and her opponent in the rough. Miss Batchelder played a fine out, running seven feet by the pin while Mrs. Eaton, standing on the bank of the trap, with the ball below her, made the best shot of the mound, picking her ball out and stopping it three feet short of the cup, from where she dropped her putt for a three and a win after Miss Batchelder had missed.

Miss Batchelder Loses 7th Hole

Miss Batchelder ran into considerable trouble going up the seventh fairway and had played five strokes when she reached the green Mrs. Eaton was just short of the green with two wooden shots but her approach was weak and she followed this slip by putting strongly, running by the cup, and then missed by inches back, yet she won the hole with a six as Miss Batchelder needed two putts.

Mrs. Eaton was short going to the eight hole and lost the hole to a three as Miss Batchelder was on and down in two putts

Miss Batchelder came up with a win at the long eleventh where Mrs. Eaton hooked her tee shot out of bouds. Mrs. Eaton went back to three up at the short twelfth where Miss Batchelder was trapped from the tee and her fifth hole to a regulation three.

Mrs. Eaton, having recovered from her slump, put on the pressure and won the 13th and 14 with par 5s, the match, 5 and 4 and the honor of being a finalist in the W. G. A. championships.

Mrs. Eaton's card:
Out ..... 4 5 5 5 3 6 4 7—44
In 7 3 3 5

Mrs. Batchelder:

JACK CONWAY — ERNIE SCHAAF

"Twas on a dark and stormy evening," or words to that effect, "I punched myself into this old world." Heigho! It's a great old world when you're sitting atop it, like Ernie Schaaf, new idol of the fistic fans, prize plant in the Cauliflower Patch. ERNIE SCHAAF tells his life story to JACK CONWAY, famous fistic expert of the Boston Evening American. The first installment appears today. Fight fans can't afford to miss 'em. DODGERS GET OPTION ON CALDWELL

New York, May 28 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced they had taken an option on the services of Bruce Caldwell, former Yale football star and present star of the New Haven Baseball Club of the Eastern League, with the right to buy his release at the end of the current playing season.

Mat Fan Did the Manly Thing

—By MYLES T. McSWEENEY—

There is absolutely nothing in the rules of wrestling against it and instead of being arrested the Baltimore wrestling fan, who walked up into the ring and pinned a haymaker on the jaw of Dick Daviscourt, who was tangled up with Gino Garibaldi on Tuesday night, should be given a shot at the title with Don George, Degiane, Lewis, Londos, or whoever it is who now holds the heavyweight mat title.

The fellow said his name was Thomas Lusso. He refused to discuss the incident.

Lusso paid to see action. He wasn't getting it. He thought the boys were fooling. So he did the manly thing.

We recommend this procedure. Wrestling or fight fans, who come to see a bout and are rewarded with a dancing act, should be permitted to step into the ring and take a hand in matters.

STARS HURT ON EVE OF N. C. 4-A. TRACK MEET

New York, May 28 (INS)—Pessimism took its fling, at track circles today, and gloomy stores were spread about the condition of four alleged prime-ers all of whom had been expected to score at the I. C. A. A. A. championships in Philadelphia tomorrow and Saturday.

The four men who may even yet be out there "doing and dying" on Franklin Field, but who right now are supposed to be on the injured list, are Oscar Sutermeister of Harvard pole vault champion, Reo Dyar of Stanford, sprinter de luxe; Capt. Rogers Smith of Stanford, hurdler, and Bill Carr of Pennsylvania, sprinter.

Should any of their entries be cancelled, particularly those of the Stanford men, the ultimate result of the intercollegiates may be considerably changed.

Dyer and Smith are both nursing sore tendons, but their condition is disputing to circulating but Judicious are that Sutermeister's ankle, however, will keep him from defending his title in the pole vault, and in that case Bill Graber of Southern California is expected to have things very much his own way

Bullwinkle Says He Will Break Record

Considerable spice has been added to the intercollegiate track by the boast of George Bullwinkle of the College of the City of New York that he is going to beat the present I. C. A. A. A. record in the mile run. Last year he won the event in 4.18.8, and this year he threatens to do 4.13.5. The intercollegiate record of 4.14.4 was made in 1913 by John Paul Jones of Cornell.

Bullwinkle announced that he intends to set a brilliant pace, and pass by the half-mile mark in a little over 2.02.

DIAMOND DUST

By JOE CASHMAN

Ed Brandt, Braves' undefeated southpaw, faces his stiffest test of the season this afternoon, when he goes after his eighth straight victory against Fred Fitzmmons in the fourth and final game of the series with the Giants in New York.

Two of Brandt's seven wins were at the expense of the McGrawmen, but both of them were chalked up at the Wigwam. When he attempts to beat them on their own back yard this p. m. he will be trying to do something that no Tribal hurler has succeeded in doing this season.

When the Warriors lost yesterday, 7 to 4, it was their third and fatal defeat of the series and their fifth setback in as many starts on the Polo Grounds this campaign

The Giants, as a result of their victory, climbed into first place over the Cards, who were blanked by the Pirates, and the Braves, as a result of their defeat, were knocked out of third place by the Cubs, who beat the Reds.

Wally Berger hit his second home run of the season and "Red" Worthington added two tripies to his total but these drives were of little use as Harry "Socks" Seibold couldn't silence the Giant sluggers.

Wes Ferrell, Cleveland mound ace, is finally back on the victory trail. After being knocked out of the box in several games following his early-season no-hit, no-run performance, he outpitched Sammy Gray and turned back the Browns, yesterday. Incidentally, he pitched his perfect game against the Browns with Gray on the mound.

Sammy West, Senators' centerfielder, is one of the greatest fly hawks in the business. He robbed the Sox of about a dozen extra-base blows in the past three games by miraculous catches

Even the Senators' pitchers are fast. "Lefty" Brown laid down a bunt in the first game of Wednesday's twin bill and he looked like Jack Bottrock in his speediest days flying down the base path.

Allie Marquardt, Sox infielder, sat in the left field stands during the Braves-Giants doubleheader last Sunday and he swears that he could have caught that drive by Berger in the seventh inning of the last game when the umpires ruled a double, despite the protest of the Tribe that the ball had landed in the stands and bounced out. Marquardt says that a fan tried to catch the ball and that it broke through his lap, hit his leg and bounced back on the field

Milt Gaston is still bothered with a sore arm He warmed up before the first game of the mid-week doubleheader, but the kink forced him to quit. He will rest until the A's arrive Saturday.

NEW N. E. HEAVY CHAMPION ENLISTED IN NAVY AT 15 AND THERE BOXED SHARKEY

By ERNIE SCHAAF
(As told to Jack Conway)

Heavyweight champion of New England!

Four years ago a rob in the navy at $30 a month. Now king of the New England heavyweights and on my way to the heavyweight championship of the world and a fortune.

Maybe I'm dreaming after all.

I received $7500 for a one-round knockout of Jim Maloney. With Johnny Buckley receiving offers for my services from all parts of the country, I guess there isn't any depression for a big fellow who can punch a little bit.

It is customary, I understand, when telling the story of one's life to start at the very beginning of things.

Born in 1909

I was born at Elizabeth, N. J., on September 27, 1909. I come from what today is considered a large family, but which would only be looked upon as an ordinary family a generation ago.

In addition to my father and mother, I have four sisters and two brothers.

My sister, Lucille, is the oldest of the children. She is 29, or should I say "over 21?" Then there is Florence, 27; May, 24, and Marion, 20.

I have two younger brothers, Nelson, 15; John, 10.

As a boy at Elizabeth, N. J., I attended the grammar school there until I was 13 years of age when I went to work in a factory

At that time Elizabeth, N. J., was a red hot fight town as it was the home of Mickey Walker, who later won the world's welterweight and middleweight championships and George Ward, for a number of years a leading welterweight contender.

I understand that Boston and New England fans have seen Walker and Ward in some of their best battles in the Hub.

I always followed the work of Walker and Ward in the ring. They were my boyhood idols.

For two years I worked in the factories of Elizabeth, N. J. This type of employment kept me indoors a great deal and I did not care much for it.

Enlisted at 15

I used to like to read stories of adventure, and I decided to cast my lot with the navy.

I was then only 15 years of age, but was very big for my age. It was easy for me to get by the enlistment officer. His thought I was at least 18 years of age.

I enlisted at Newark, N. J., and was sent to Newport, R. I. for seven weeks of schooling. I then received a 10-day leave of absence and went to visit my home at Elizabeth, N. J.

It was a proud day for me when I paraded the streets of the old home town decked up in a navy uniform.

The order then came for me to join the battleship Denver, which was at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

That was seven years ago last winter. I arrived in Boston with some other recruits and hurried over to the Charlestown Navy Yard.

After I got settled on the Denver, I found the ship had a boxing team. It was not long before I was attending every workout of the boxers at the gym in the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Sharkey First Foe

"I'd like to try my hand at boxing," I told him.

When I got ready for action, he told me to step into the ring and box with a big fellow who was all warmed up. I later discovered that my opponent was none other than Jack Sharkey. At the time Sharkey was also a member of the crew of the Denver

Sharkey had a little too much experience for me at the time as he had been boxing in navy tournaments, but I managed to weather the barrage of blows that was tossed at me.

I always could take a punch, and have neither been knocked down or knocked out during my career as a boxer.

I'm going to keep knocking on one.

In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, Schaaf will tell of his experiences as a boxer in the Navy.)

PAIR TO CLASH FOR MILK FUND

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, will battle Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, in a 15-round bout under the direction of Jimmy Johnston and the Milk Fund at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn the latter part of June or in July, according to an announcement made by Johnny Buckley from New York today.

The proposed Sharkey-Carnera bout, originally set for June 10 at Brooklyn, has been postponed pending Primo's appeal against the federal court injunction barring him from boxing the American champion until he meets the winner of the Schmeling-Stribling bout for Illinois Madison Square Garden Corp.

In the event Sharkey's bout with Walker does not take place until July, the Boston heavyweight will probably engage in a warm-up match in June. Sharkey has been training for three weeks and would be ready to fight on ten days' notice.

Speaking over the long distance telephone from New York, Buckley also stated he has virtually closed for Ernie Schaaf, New England heavyweight champion, as a result of his knockout victory over Jim Maloney, to meet either Roberto Roberti or Rhoderick Bertagnole at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on June 10.

Buckley was to confer today with Johnston and William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., in an effort to get another Loughran bout for Schaaf.

Schaaf and Loughran May Meet Again

Loughran and Schaaf have met four times and each has two decisions to his credit. Loughran won the duke in a Boston bout and one which was staged in New York. Schaaf received the decision in two contests which were held in Philadelphia.

"I know I can knock out Loughran if given the opportunity to meet him in a 15-round contest," said Schaaf today. "In our last bout, which was held in New York, Tommy was leg weary at the end of 10 rounds. He managed to go the distance by running away and flicking with the left hand.

"In a 15-round tussle, I would be certain to win by a knockout. Loughran might be able to keep out of my way for 10 rounds, but it would catch up with him during the last five rounds."

"Schaaf punches too hard for Loughran," said Sharkey. "I was in Ernie's corner in his last tussle with Loughran. Tommy got the decision, but was exhausted at the finish as a result of running away from Schaaf. In a 15-round bout, Schaaf would catch up with Loughran. And when that occurred he would stop the Philadelphian."

Sharkey Trains for Summer Campaign

Sharkey stated he intends to continue in light training until his summer boxing program is completed.

"I was disappointed when my bout with Carnera was stopped by a court order," said Sharkey. "I am now goin to fight Mickey Walker, who thinks he can lick any of the heavyweights.

"By that time Carnera's troubles may have cleared up in which event I shall meet him.

"I agreed a month ago to give Loughran another bout. I know I can knock him out even more quickly than I did in our last bout. Tommy, however, now announces he doesn't want to meet me. Guess he doesn't want to get knocked out again. He'll probably refuse to meet Ernie, too.

"Loughran isn't any too rugged and he prefers to keep away from punchers. Maybe this is my judgment on his part, but he likes getting knocked out."

Tex Rickard, matchmaker of the Boston Garden, stated today he would attempt to arrange for a return bout between Maloney and Schaaf. Maloney isn't satisfied with the result of the recent bout. He still insists he is Schaaf's master and the latter is willing to give him an opportunity to try to prove it.

Bates 440 Star Gets New N. E. Record

Lewiston, Me., May 28 (AP)—Arnold Bates, Bates quarter-miler, knocked two-fifths of a second from the New England Intercollegiate meet record last Saturday in covering the distance in 48 2-5 seconds, it was announced today. The program gave the previous record set by J. F. Tierney, Holy Cross, in 1920, at 48 3-5.

Ernest J. Theberge of Lawrence, Mass., graduate secretary of the games, said that Tierney's time should have been listed at 48 4-5.

NEW A. L. HEAD NEVER PLAYED

Cleveland, May 28 (AP)—There wasn't much doubt in the minds of American League club owners today that they had selected, not only a diplomat as their third president, but a man who can handle the "big stick" as well as the late "Ban" Johnson and Ernest S. Barnard.

The new league head, William Harridge of Chicago, who was elected to a full three-year term, is a quiet, unassuming man of 45. He seldom talks much, but there have been occasions when he has acted quickly, decisively.

"They don't have to worry about Will Harridge," said Henry Edwards, head of the American League service bureau. "He doesn't say much, but he knows what he's talking about."

Harridge is the third American League president and the third one who never played major league baseball.

"No, I never played the game," he smiled, when asked about his baseball career. "I didn't know the difference between a passed ball and a strikeout when Mr. Johnson hired me as his private secretary 28 years ago, so I had to do a lot of study."

Harridge did study, and today he is rated as one of the smartest baseball men in the game.

JIM M'LARNIN WINS OVER PETROLLE

By DAMON RUNYON

Madison Square Garden, New York, May 27 — Probably the most thrilling feature of the return fight between Jimmy McLarnin, of Vancouver, and Billy Petrolle, the so-called "Fargo Express" at Madison Square Garden last night was the sudden return of prosperity to The Manly Art of Self Defense in these parts.

The manly art hereabouts has been feeling the depression no little. In fact, it has been lower than a snake's whiskers. It had reached a stage where it wasn't drawing pretzels, and promoters were forbidden the purchase of rope with a prescription.

But last night the ringworms came popping out of the dark places where they have been hiding and swarmed into the Garden to the number of 17,846. They paid a total of $62,217.38 into the box office, a net gate of $70,184.96.

A couple of years back that wouldn't have been worth mentioning anywhere in a fight story, much less in the lead. Now it's news. It's not only news that this much money has been paid for a fight; it's news that there is so much ready cash in the whole world.

Verdict for McLarnin Is Unanimous

As for the fight itself—well, as I have said parenthetically, McLarnin won. He got the unanimous decision of the judges, Harold Barnes and Joe Agnello, and the referee, Arthur Donovan, at the end of ten partially feverish heats. This reverses the result of their meeting some weeks back when Petrolle got the decision.

Petrolle, ordinarily a hip-hooray, let-'s-have-at-'em type of fighter, fought right up McLarnin's alley. That is to say, the "Fargo Express" tried to do a bit of boxing with James, instead of just piling in and letting the Riverists flow, which is the way to lick McLarnin, if he is to be licked.

By standing off, Petrolle gave McLarnin an opportunity to practice plain and fancy drives and putts on him. Before the finish, William's face was a most distasteful scene, what with blood, and bruises, and one thing and another. Whenever Petrolle got tired of being targeted, and lunged in and clouted kid-sklins at McLarnin, he looked more imposing.

St. Louis Boy to Lead Yale '32 Court Team

New Haven, Ct., May 28 (AP)—The election of William L. Bascom, a junior, of St. Louis, as captain of next year's Yale tennis team was announced today.

The captain was elected at a dinner of members of the tennis team last night. Redmond G. Thomas of St. Louis was elected assistant manager for next year, while Herbert L. Luria of Reading, Pa., assistant manager this year, will automatically become manager.

Judges Award Fight to Pete Sanstol

Quebec, May 28 (INS)—Pete Sanstol, Norwegian bantamweight, recognized in some parts of Canada as world's champion, today boasted a record, unsullied by a draw fight. The judges declared a 10-round bout between Sanstol and Benny Brostoff, New York, a draw, but later the Quebec commission ordered a meeting and reversed the decision, giving the verdict to Sanstol.

Jack Conway Splits Even on Last Night's Bouts

Conway selected Maloney to beat Schaaf, and Schaaf knocked Maloney out. Jack picked Leo Larivee to take Sammy Bruno and Harry Allen to take care of Rosy Rosales. Larivee did his stuff while Rosales took exception to Conway's selections and knocked Allen out in the seventh round.

So much for that!

LARIVEE AND ROSALES WIN AT WIGWAM

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Leo Larivee of Waterbury, Ct., and Rosy Rosales of Cleveland furnished the fireworks in the two feature ten round bouts of the Argonne A. A. boxing show at Braves Field last night.

Larivee scored a fine 10-round verdict over Sam Bruce of Buffalo, N. Y., who lost to Johnny Indrisano last week, while Rosales surprised the fans by flattening Harry Allen of Brockton in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

The other 10-rounder between Harry Allen and Rosy Rosales was pretty even until the seventh stanza, when Rosales broke loose with a mighty right hander to the jaw and Allen went to sleep.

The final contest of the evening found Leslie Baker of Watertown measuring off with Frankie Herlihy of Lynn. It was a four-rounder and the boys teased all they had into the works.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

The left hand and arm do not provide all the power in your stroke, but one thing is necessary

—the right hand must not be permitted to overpower the left. In that event, the left arm seemingly collapses as the clubhead goes through the ball. This causes you to swing through directionally from right to left, and you find your club finishing away around to the left. The finish must be directly out into the direction line, the turn taking place when the limit of forward has been attained. Allowing time for the swing-around to the right of the clubhead soon after the back swing starts, put your right hand and forearm underneath the shaft. Then in your forward swing the right arm helps the left, and causes both your arms to swing from the inside out—and well out into the line of flight. Much indeed depends on getting the beginning of your back swing right. No detail is of more consequence than this simple swing-around or opening up of the clubface.

12 OF ELI CREW BANNED FOR SMOKING

New Haven, May 28—Twelve Yale varsity oarsmen were today disqualified for the season for smoking. Only one member of the first varsity shell, Lyman Goodbody, No. 6, was affected.

The exact list of the second and third crews could not be secured, but it was sufficient to cause the Yale University rowing management to cancel the Yale entry for the third varsity crew at the American Henley races, scheduled for Saturday in Philadelphia.

Yale has formally withdrawn from that event because a majority of the members of the crew which it planned to send have been disqualified. Yale has lost two varsity races this spring already to Cornell and Columbia, respectively. In both instances the Yale crew lacked energy at the finish.

The Yale varsity squad of 35 oarsmen will go on Sunday to Gales Ferry to train for the Yale-Harvard regatta, June 19. The 12 disqualified oarsmen will be left behind.

LOCALS LOSE TWICE TO SENATORS

By JOE CASHMAN

Big Earl Webb makes it a pleasure to watch the Red Sox play whether they win or lose.

That's the greatest compliment that can be payed a ball player, if there were a greater one, "Webb" would be deserving of it.

Earl Combs of the Yanks has hit safely in his last 28 games. Al Simmons of the A's in his last 28 and several other sluggers are knocking the cover off the ball, but there is no more dangerous hitter in either league these days than the giant right fielder of the Fenway flock.

He has a mark of .343, which places him among the 10 leading hitters in the circuit, is leading both leagues in doubles by a wide margin with a total of 22, and has hit six home runs and a flock of triples.

With a pennant contending ball club he would be one of the most highly advertised and praised figures in the game. His great work is overlooked because of the lowly position of the Sox, but to the critical baseball mind, the fact that he is with a weak club adds to his renown, for mediocre players often star with winners while only the truly great can be outstanding with losers.

Webb Has Hit Safely 9 Out of 15 Times

The Washington pitching staff is regarded as one of the strongest and best-balanced in the game, yet in the last four contests Webb has made nine hits in fifteen times up, against six different Senator flingers and every one of them was of the extra-base variety.

He made a home run, a triple and seven doubles. If just a few of his mates could have come close to keeping pace with him, the Sox would never have lost three of those four contests.

He was virtually the whole Box team in Wednesday's twin-bill and though he got little, if any, assistance from his mates, he almost batted the natives into an even split.

In the first game he never had a chance as the Solons landed on Lisenbee and Kline for 11 runs, but he did hit two doubles and a triple in four times up and knock in two of the three runs the Sox managed to score off Southpaw Bob Brown.

In the second game, which the Senators won 4 to 3, he doubled the first time up against "Lefty" Fischer and scored the first local run on Pickering's single to tie the score. The Senators fanned Big Ed Morris for three runs in the fifth and the home boys got two of these back in their half, leaving them only one run behind.

Webb's Double Drives Fischer to Showers

Webby, first up in the sixth, rode his round double, which sent Fischer to the showers, but his mates couldn't bring him in.

Earl used to be weak against low ball and southpaw pitching, no longer. Sam Jones tried to keep curve him Tuesday and ours produced two doubles. Yesterday he saw nothing but portside flinging for the host and his only time four doubles and a triple.

Colling isn't the sort of guy to fall for that kind of work very long. We wouldn't be a bit surprised if he made some changes this very afternoon.

H. Smith, Farrell Trail Berlin Golfer

Arbroath, Scotland, May 28 (AP)—After sharing the lead in the pitch and put "championship" two days, Horton Smith of Missouri today took a 61, dropping him back to a tie with Johnny Farrell of Massapequa, N. Y., and giving Percy Arliss of Berlin the lead with his 54-hole total of 168.

DAVIS CUP PLAY ON IN CAPITAL

Washington, May 28 (US)—Drawings for the two opening singles matches of the American-Argentine Davis Cup play, beginning here today resulted in the pairing of Frank X. Shields, American, against William Robson, and Sidney Wood, American, against Ronaldo Boy.

The drawings for the doubles matches will be made tomorrow.

Both teams were in prime condition on the eve of the Western Hemisphere title play, at which Secretary of State Stimson will serve as referee.

The winner of the present meeting will play the winner of the European zone for the right to challenge France, the present holder of the Davis Cup.

The teams thrilled the President, Mrs. Hoover and a distinguished gathering of enthusiasts from the diplomatic corps with an exhibition of their skill yesterday on the White House tennis courts.

Although the captains of both teams have withheld announcement of the doubles teams that will face each other tomorrow, Berrien S. Prentice, non-playing United States captain, indicated today Shields and Wood would get the call.

Prentice said, however, that this selection might be subject to change before match time.

TWO U. S. COURT STARS LOSE

Roland Garros Stadium, Auteuil, France, May 28 (AP)—Two of the United States' three remaining hopes to win a French tennis singles title were eliminated in the quarter-final round today, John Van Ryn losing to Jiro Satoh, the Japanese Davis cup player, and Helen Jacobs losing to Betty Nuthall, of England.

Jean Borotra won his semi-final match opposite Satoh in the lower draw by defeating his fellow countryman, Beni Berthet, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3. Satoh and Borotra meet tomorrow.

Betty Nuthall Beats Helen Jacobs, 6—3, 6—2

Auteuil, France, May 28 (INS)—Miss Helen Jacobs, brilliant American tennis star from Berkeley, Cal., was eliminated by Betty Nuthall of England in the quarter-finals of the women's singles in the French hard court championships at the Roland Garros Stadium today, by scores of 6—3, 6—2.

PRIMO MAY WAR WITH REDMOND

New York, May 28 (INS)—Primo Carnera may get a New York unveiling, despite a court injunction which temporarily has prevented him meeting Jack Sharkey of Boston in Brooklyn on June 10, it was reported today. Promoter Jimmy Johnston plans to match the giant Italian against Pat Redmond, huge Irish heavyweight.

The contract which Madison Square Garden of Illinois holds with Carnera, it was pointed out, bars Carnera from meeting such major fighters as Sharkey, Campolo, Loughran and others, but he may meet heavyweights not listed in the contract.

Johnston may stage the Carnera-Redmond bout in Ebbets Field early in June, it was said.

Harvard Trackmen Leave for Philly

Harvard track and field athletes will leave today for Philadelphia for the I. C. 4A championships, leaving behind three of their number.

GIANTS BEAT BRAVES TO GAIN LEAD

New York, May 28 (US)—The Giants took the lead in the National League pennant race by defeating the Braves, 7 to 4, while the Cardinals were losing to the Pirates.

The Hubmen raced off to an early advantage but a big third inning during which four Giant tallies crossed the plate, three of them on a homer by Hogan, reversed matters. Berger hit a homer for the Braves.

HARD LINKS FOR BRITISH OPEN

Carnoustie, Scotland, May 28 (AP)—Great stretches of sandy wastes, high sand dunes and more than 300 yawning traps will demand the utmost in skill and accuracy from the 214 entrants, including 13 from the United States, who tee off in the qualifying round of the British open championship play Monday over the "old course" here.

Although this will be the first time that the open event has been held at Carnoustie, the course is almost as famous in Scotland as the classic St. Andrews links. The modern history of the links goes back about a century, but local chroniclers insist they have evidence to prove the game was being played here as far back as 1727.

Most courses must be lengthened for championship play, but Carnoustie had to be shortened for the coming event. Its natural length of 6701 yards has been reduced to 6680. Carnoustie, unlike most modern courses, is a "left to right" layout most of the way, with the out of bounds regions generally on the left side of the fairways. This is calculated to give the slicers more confidence.

Gratton, you're supposed to be a word-presdigitator. Pull me a phrase out of the blue that can do justice to that view down there."

They leaned over the parapet, young and exultant, stricken with the wonder of what they were, even more than with the wonder of what they beheld.

The wind in their faces could not bulge her in the tight black helmet that covered her head like close hair. It lifted the light tan thatch of Gratton's though, as if it were a wig. It was difficult to indulge in any but a breathless sort of discourse, and yet, they did discourse, these two, smartly at first, exultant, and high-keyed each to the other's presence.

"After spending a summer in a picturesque, damp, uncomfortable and gloomy thatched cottage in Sussex, I am convinced that love in a cottage may lead to lumbago."

"Love! Must all conversational roads lead to love?"

"I wish you could get all the way through to being in love with me, Jennifer. I need to be rich. I've a low kind of Indiana background that I don't seem able to live down. I can't feel the swank in evading my creditors. An unpaid dry-cleaner's bill will insist upon keeping me too worried to tackle a second act."

"An admirable but low instinct, my lad, not acknowledged in circles of the creative impulse."

"Go on."

"Where?"

"Not being all the wise-crack things we seem to pretend to be, whenever we are together."

"It's you who sets that pace, Jennifer."

"I need the wise-crack, to divert the eye of the beholder from seeing through how I do my poor little mental tricks. You don't."

"Jennifer, are you being humble?"

Obscured by Fear

"That's terrible! It somehow . . . hurts. I prefer you naughty."

"I think you do."

"I think I don't—really"—

"Gratton, guess why my face aches?"

"Too loaded with the seductiveness of youth and beauty."

"Don't rag. I am being profound and introspective. Altitude does that to me. My face aches, Gratton, from pretending to look like what it isn't."

"Perhaps, it is your heart that aches, Jennifer."

Their bright young eyes poured against each other, and she did something that was adorable to him. She placed her hand up against the region of the heart in question, and her lips came lightly apart like a small, thirsty bird's.

"That's it! The ache is down there, and my face hurts from pretending that it isn't."

"Not kind, Jennifer."

"If I were to start in allowing myself to be kind to you, Gratton, I might not know where to stop."

"Wonderful of you to say that."

"Yes! Two red funnels."

"Right. I want to slip alongside a pier. That's what Father always says about you. You've destination."

"What kind of port do you want, Jennifer?"

"An snug harbor into which I could bring useful wares—such as they are."

"Both?"

"Aren't I grotesque to you, Gratton, uphere on this peak of dimes? Don't I appall you?"

A Hard Problem

"Look at father over there. Bewildered, frustrated, with dimes. Sometimes he seems to me like a little man whose eyes have turned to dimes and whose spirit cannot shine through them. Dimes have flowed over this life, making of it a metal prairie. My mother stands in the middle of such a prairie. I do. My brother lies buried in it. This building is a monument of dimes to the futility of dimes . . . and, in a way, a monument to the curious, groping genius of my father. I am part of his great frustration — Gratton — never for a moment doubt but what I know that."

"There are times when I come perilously near liking you perilously, Jennifer."

"Like me enough to understand me, Gratton."

"Then you understand him." he said, and nodded to the form of Rarick, who seemed perpetually to be hovering on the edge of groups to which he did not quite belong.

"I try," she said, on a small click of teeth. "I try. I try. I try. Believe that."

"Curious how simple he seems to me. A man who is too stern an idealist to compromise. A man who asked for bread and got a gold nugget."

"I don't."

"I'm crazy to help him. I'm crazy to—to love him."

"I should think his pathos would help you to that; the pathos of his terrible, heart-breaking grandeur."

"It does."

"Jennifer, you are sweeter today than I have ever known you. Please don't ever again let your face ache from looking like what it isn't."

"Yes, but what about my heart?"

"It's a dear heart. In the right place."

"Gratton, if you prove that to father, some day, when I do things for him that he won't believe I had it in me to do, will I be proving it to you at the same time?"

"If you haven't already."

"I need more money than anybody in the world, Gratton. The chances are that I'm apt to always have money.

"I wouldn't want ever not to have money, and yet, I suppose that the only real chance I'd ever have to show what I think I'm made of, is to wake up some morning broke—God forbid!"

"I'm beginning to strangely suspect you of being made of what you think you are."

He stooped to pick up her glove which had fallen crumpled to her feet.

"Give me your hand," he said. "I'll draw this on for you."

"Are you suing for my hand?"

"No."

"Well, then, keep the gauntlet until you are ready to come suing.'

"Idjut," he said.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mrs. Mary Reardon, 680 E. 6th St., So. Boston, says: "I am 71 years old. For the past three years I suffered very much from stomach trouble. I was compelled to spend a great part of my time in bed, with pains around my heart and shoulder blades. A local doctor failed to relieve me. A neighbor Wm Walsh told me how Dr. Walsh had helped him when he suffered much as I did. I had Dr. Walsh treat me and soon was a great booster for Dr. Walsh. I told all my friends how much Dr. Walsh had helped me. I took my daughter to Dr. Walsh, and she, too, sings Dr. Walsh's praises. I permit the publication of this testimonial gladly, in the hope of helping others who suffer as I did."

Eleanor Patterson Sets a Good Example

Having Brains, She Works Hard

This young woman is one of the VERY few able and successful women editing American newspapers. There ought to be many more, for woman are particularly adapted to newspaper work. They know what interests human beings.

(Copyright by Bachrach)

MRS. ELEANOR PATTERSON, EDITOR OF THE WASHINGTON HERALD

And they possess INNATE INTEGRITY which is the most important thing in newspaper work.

Mrs. Patterson, in addition to being a good newspaper woman, sets a good example to other prosperous women and men.

Thanks to her grandfather, Joseph Medill, who established the Chicago Tribune, Mrs. Patterson is rich, with more than a million dollars a year income, in fact A GREAT DEAL MORE.

Mrs. Patterson, if she chose, could, like many other rich men and women, devote her life to pleasure. But that doesn't suit her; she wants to work, and does work, HARD.

First she tried to buy W. R. Hearst's Washington Herald. He would not sell it.

Then she offered to rent it, paying a good rental each year for a period of ten years. But Mr. Hearst wouldn't rent it. He compromised by giving Mrs. Patterson a job as editor of the Herald, and since she started to work, nearly a year ago, as you will read later in Mrs. Patterson's own words, the Herald has prospered brilliantly.

In a recent article in the Washington Herald, Mrs. Patterson raises various interesting questions, which you will settle in your own mind as you read her article, printed below.

She says that successful women do more bragging than men do. She thinks also women have an inferiority complex. That is true of some; others have the other complex.

Mrs. Patterson enjoys her work, as everybody does that really WORKS. Many young women could find happiness in following her example and concentrating on a job, instead of concentrating eternally on the results of beauty parlor treatments.

Here follows Mrs. Eleanor Patterson's short article on bragging and success:

"Blow, Bugle, Blow"

SUCCESSFUL women in business, politics or commercialized art pretty generally express a sense of their own importance. They like to tell you about their success. They like to tell you about the important people who think they are important.

They don't apologize and they don't explain. They don't poke honest fun at themselves. They are the heroines of their own stories. Sometimes they are grim, sometimes they are excessively calm, but always they are superior.

Successful women brag more than successful men and successful men brag quite a good deal. I guess the reason is that women are fairly new at the game and are still suffering from an inferiority complex.

Now, I'm not a successful woman. I have never worked very hard and I have never worked very well. I'm always explaining. Forever explaining. It seems to me I have to. Often I think I'm silly and I say so.

But it has gradually dawned upon me that I never WILL be a SUCCESSFUL WOMAN unless I adopt a different attitude. So I have decided to blow my own trumpet, fill my lungs and blast away with the others. Of course I don't want to overdo the thing right at the beginning. I am still willing to admit that I don't know agate type from a 228-point Gothic scare-head. I don't know news or pictures or make-up. I don't know how to write and I don't know how to read. (That is, I don't know how to read newspapers.) I don't know the A, B, C's of circulation, advertising, editorial policy, features.

But somehow or other (I guess it's just one of those merry, little coincidences), since I came on the HERALD July 31 of last year the circulation has increased 24 per cent.

ELEANOR PATTERSON.

Beat the Hull Bridge Plan

If the Legislature wants to erect an enduring monument to its stupidity and gullibility it will authorize construction of the $25,000,000 toll bridge across Boston harbor from Boston to Hull.

The constitution of this Commonwealth happens to provide that government funds shall not be appropriated for private institutions, even though they happen to be hospitals and other fine organizations administering to the public health and to unfortunates and delinquents.

Yet this bold bridge proposal would advance $25,000,000 of public credit to a utility privately owned and whose profits, if any, would be reaped by the private promoters.

Henry L. Shattuck, whose independence we admire and whose integrity is generally conceded, says it proposes to suck the orange dry and leave the pulp for public consumption. No nourishment in that.

If such a bridge is ever to be built, the State should build it and there should be no tolls levied upon the people.

If by any remote chance the Legislature should adopt this scheme it may be safely assumed that none of the Solons will want their names to be inscribed upon its memorial plaque where the public will be able to identify the perpetrators of the folly.

Stop Saying "Depression"

STOP USING that word "depression!"

Stop thinking you have a right to be depressed.

Depression isn't an inevitable thing, an excusable thing. It's a contemptible thing.

DEPRESSION, WHEN YOUR COUNTRY IS IN TROUBLE, IS AS CONTEMPTIBLE AS DESERTION WHEN YOUR COUNTRY IS UNDER FIRE.

Elsie Robinson

You despise a deserter. You understand his temptation, of course. You, too, have been afraid and wanted to run away. But a real man doesn't let himself run away just because he's afraid. If he has the spunk of a tick, he sticks.

That's the way you think about a man who runs away with his legs. BUT IT HAS I EVER OCCURRED TO YOU TO THINK IN THAT WAY ABOUT THE MAN WHO RUNS AWAY WITH HIS MIND. Yet a man can be yellow with his mind as well as with his legs. And during this last year we Americans, who were always so proud of our courage, have turned yellow! We are running away, just as surely as the deserter runs away. Only we call his cowardice "desertion." And we call our cowardice "depression." BUT THE EFFECT ON THE COUNTRY IS THE SAME.

"But times are hard," you say. "It's bound to make a fellow do some serious thinking—"

Sure, times are hard. And we should all do serious thinking. But that's no sign that we should resign ourselves to depression. Times were hard for that little army at Valley Forge. But they didn't sit around, wallowing in gloom, thinking how hard times were. THEY KEPT MOVING! Ragged and hungry, bleeding and freezing, they kept moving . . . UNTIL THEY MOVED TO VICTORY. AND CAVE THIS COUNTRY TO YOU AND TO ME.

THEY LICKED HARD TIMES BY KEEPING MOVING.

Sitting down and yielding to depression would have been as frightful a crime for them as running away. IT'S AS FRIGHTFUL A CRIME NOW. IT WILL LICK US JUST AS SURELY, IF WE CONTINUE TO DO IT.

Trouble is, things have been so soft and easy for the last ten years that we've gradually been losing our self respect. Fifty years ago if a big, healthy, young nation had abandoned itself to "depression" just because it was in a bit of a jam, the rest of the world would have given it the razz. But we've been lolling around, listening to so many "blue" songs, that we no longer think it's disgusting to act like Big Cry Babies when things go wrong. We're not ashamed to say we're depressed—not ashamed to admit we're taking the count. Indeed, we're getting so we almost boast about it. We compare our various depressions as old ladies once compared operations.

Stop it! Erase that word depression from your vocabulary. Wipe your chin and tie up your ears and begin to act like a man! Cut out the bleats and get moving. If you can't lick the hard times you can at least go through the motions. Hustle all you can! Laugh all you can! Spend all you can! Hope all you can! If you can't burst into carols of joy, you can at least refrain from a fit of pouts—AND THAT'S SOMEPIN! Indeed, that's a lot. For as soon as we stop acting licked, we won't be. THE MOST VICIOUS THING THAT AMERICA HAS TO FIGHT TODAY IS HER OWN BELLIAKIN.

New York Day by Day

The Late Miss Wendell

NEW YORK, May 28—The silent, cob-webby mansion at 39th st. and 5th ave. still stands in eerie solitude. Since the passing of its last and lone inhabitant, Miss Ella Wendell, at 81, and the resultant publicity about the eccentric family of millionaires, there is always a curious group at the curb.

Even in its hey-dey the flutter of a curtain now and then gave the scabrous brick house its only show of life. After nightfall there was the faint twitching from a coal oil lamp deep in the interior—that was all. Scarcely ever did neighbors see anyone come and go.

Next door to the north is the vacant lot with its dull and rough high board and spiked fence, said to represent a real estate value of five millions. It is still being used by a caretaker as an exercising ground for the toothless and asthmatic Wendell poodle—now going blind.

* * *

A story with an unusual bad taste in press agency was printed saying Miss Wendell, a few days before death, accompanied two equally aged companions to a notorious night club and remained until 2 a. m. It further said in reckless prevarication that Miss Wendell gave the noisy hostess a $4500 bracelet.

* * *

Miss Wendell ventured forth from her exile but seldom. Yet those who know say she was far from the type of rich recluse novels portray as living in mystery houses—swathed in eternal suspicion. She was a lively lady with a sense of humor and a wholesome interest in current events.

* * *

She merely preferred to be on the sidelines watching and not a part of the parade. She read newspaper columns, dramatic reviews and was privy to what was going on in the world which never saw her. There were times, too, when her dimming eyes twinkled over a joke on one of her few intimates.

* * *

Miss Wendell's fortune, all in real estate, was worth more than one hundred millions. She obeyed her will old father's advice—to buy real estate, but never to sell. Several blocks of Broadway frontage belonged entirely to her. Like her residence, it all needs improvement.

After a silence a nappy-headed little negro in a high pitched Amos voice observed: "I don't keer. Hit ain't gwine hurt me in no way 'cause I'm jest ez soon hev scrip ez no moneys a tall."

The other day passing the Bronx zoo I dropped in to see the mongoose—one of only three snake killers in America. It suggests the ferret, softly furry and with eyes as merrily bright as Eddie Cantor's. My admiration for the mongoose borders on the hysterical since I saw a mongoose in one killing a cobra. It had great fun darting in and out tiring the cobra out as it struck. Finally it grabbed the snake by the back of the neck and shook it to death and scampered joyfully on its way.

Just Folks

The New Day

Never a day without something of gladness,
Something to soften and sweeten the sadness;
Something to startle the eye or entrance it,
Never a day but a smile may enhance it,
Never a day that is just like its brother;
Always it's different in some way or other.

Comes a new bud into blossom, or maybe
Somebody leaves us or somebody tarries;
Someone goes visiting, somebody marries;
Some man invents a new trinket to sell us,
Somebody stops with a new jest to tell us.

When the day dawns there is no way of knowing
What joy is coming or what care is going.
What if above us the storm clouds may hover,
We may in trouble a new friend discover.
What if we wake to the same dreary duty,

Something worth doing and something worth being.
Always some new joy or problem arises,

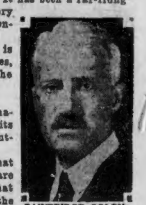
How "Candid," These Utility Companies!

By Bainbridge Colby

THE elaborate and costly propaganda maintained by the public utility companies has been the occasion of much comment. It has even been deemed worthy of the attention of the Federal Trade Commission.

Subsidized periodicals, press agent "news," speeches over the radio, and even furtive incursions into the texts contained in school books, have been resorted to. It has been a far-flung campaign, pressing into service every known means of access to popular attention.



BAINBRIDGE COLBY

The plain object of the companies is to allay dissatisfaction however it arises, either with the quality of service or the rates charged to the consumer.

* * *

A very slight familiarity with the material used in this propaganda reveals its close affinity to the "go-getter" and "put-it-over" concepts of modern business.

If you are not at once persuaded that the motives of the utility companies are those of pure self-abnegation and that their financial methods are free from the taint of profit-seeking, it is not the fault of the various departments of "publicity" and "public relations" which the companies value so highly as adjuncts to their main activities.

Their spokesmen say they are only trying to get the facts into the public mind. "The truth shall make you free" seems to be their slogan.

But not all the facts, nor the whole truth. There is a little "catch" in this publicity campaign. The public is asked to swallow the facts as they are served up to them and to accept as truth only that which is on the bill of fare offered by the utility companies.

Some weeks ago the Atlanta Gas Light Company filed a petition with the Georgia Public Service Commission, for an increase in the rates which it might charge. The petition did not state what changes or rate increases were sought.

* * *

A hearing on the petition was set for May 6, in which the city of Atlanta decided to take part. It was very important, from the public standpoint, that the reasons for an increase in rates should be known.

For the purpose of making its intervention effective, the city of Atlanta appropriated the modest sum of $1500 which it proposed to pay to the municipal utilities rate association of Georgia for expert services in analyzing the position of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, and in opposing any modifications of existing rates that might not prove warranted, when subjected to competent examination.

The Rate Association of Georgia includes a number of municipalities within the state. Many public officials are members of it, and its purpose as an organization is to protect the interests of municipalities and domestic consumers in coping with the utility companies.

* * *

Four days before the date of the hearing, on the application of a Mr. Smith, described as a taxpayer, an injunction was obtained restraining the city of Atlanta from paying this modest fee to the Municipal Utilities Rate Association or appearing against the Atlanta Gas Light Company and opposing its application for increased rates.

Mr. Smith was called before the city council of Atlanta, but did not explain very clearly how he came to bring the action, although the source and instigation of such suits is rather well understood.

But the city of Atlanta was not prepared to surrender simply because of the injunction. It had the good judgment to obtain the assistance of Dr. John Bauer, recently a member of the staff of the St. Lawrence Power Development Commission—a widely recognized authority on rate problems, valuations, cost analyses and accounting, as such questions arise in connection with public utilities. He reached Atlanta on May 4th, and addressed the Municipal Utilities Rate Association the following day, on the principles underlying the rates charged by utility companies.

* * *

The questions involved in the company's petition were becoming generally understood as never before. It was rather alarming to the company. Something had to be done.

The manager of the local radio station, sensing the public interest in the views of this distinguished expert, arranged with him for a lecture over the radio.

At this point the policy of complete candor in dealing with the public began to take fright. A request that a spokesman for the company should be permitted to follow Dr. Bauer, with an address from the company viewpoint, was promptly granted. But this afforded only momentary relief.

As public interest grew, an expanded program was arranged for Dr. Bauer. He was asked to make a series of three addresses on the general subject of the relations between utility companies and the communities they serve.

This was too much. Something had to be done and at once. It was done behind the scenes. What it was, has not been revealed. Some reference was made to "influential representations."

The discussions of public utilities, the regulation of rates and the relations of the companies to the public were cancelled, without explanation.

The Atlanta Gas Light Company is controlled by the Southern Cities Public Service Co., which in turn is controlled by the Central Public Service Corporation, which in turn is controlled by the Central Public Service Company.
